Boy Drowns as Cousin Saves Girl Companion

WADING IN CREEK, CHILDREN SLIPPED INTO DEEP HOLE

Heroism of 16-Year-Old Youth Rescues Little Girl, but Charles Mason Is Drowned.

SCENE OF FATALITY SOUTH OF AVONDALE

Sidney Mason Displays Rare Heroism as Sudden Tragedy Stalks Amid Holidaying Children.

Heroism of Sidney Mason, 16-year-old boy, of 17 Ferguson street, Tuesday morning, resulted in the rescue of Edna Thornton, 14, of 103 Alta avenue, but while he was dragging the girl to safety, his cousin, Charles Edwin Mason, 15, of 962 DeKalb avenue, drowned almost within his reach in the waters of a creek above Thompson's mill pond.

The three, with Edna's younger sister, Edith, and their visitor, Mary Nell Leake, of Conley, went to Thompson's mill pond, which is about eight miles south of Avondale, Tuesday for a swim. At the time of the tragedy the children had taken an old boat up into the creek which pours into the mill pond.

Edna and Charles were wading a short distance from the boat while the other three children were in the boat. Suddenly they heard screams for help and saw both the waters struggling in a deep hole in the water. Sidney Mason leaped from the boat and swam to the rescue.

Girl Is Saved. Reaching out his arm he grasped Edna, who was nearest to him and dragged her to safety. After reaching

Mrs. Lippard Claims Estate Of 2 Million

Savannah Woman Says She Is Only Surviving Heir of Sir Alfred Torrence.

New Orleans, La., August 31.—(AP) Mrs. William Albert Lippard, of Savannah, Ga., said to be a grand niece of the late Sir Alfred Torrence, of Castlethorpe, Essex county, England, has instituted proceedings to obtain possession of the estate of her uncle, it was learned here today. The estate is said to be valued at $2,000,000.

The recent death of Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt, it was said, was believed to have removed the only other possible contender for the estate. Mrs. Lippard said her father, William J. Torrence, a Confederate veteran of Savannah, was a nephew of the late Sir Alfred Torrence and the head of the only existing branch of the Torrence family. William J. Torrence, now 81 years old, and in addition to her daughter, Mrs. Lippard, has three sons.

Court To Consider U. S. Reservations At Meeting Today

Netherlands Jurist Scheduled To Head Conference Which Will Convene at Geneva.

FIGHT IS EXPECTED ON U. S. PROPOSAL

Four Reservations To Be Accepted By Fifth Is Almost Certain To Be Sent to Commission.

Geneva, Switzerland, August 31.—(AP)—Professor Van Eysinga, well-known Netherlands jurist, is slated for election to the presidency of the international conference of the members of the permanent court of international justice, which meet tomorrow to discuss the American reservations.

The vice presidency probably will go to a Latin-American statesman, presumably Dr. J. C. Blanco, foreign minister of Uruguay.

The impression gleaned from the European delegates is that American apprehension concerning adherence to the world court turns mainly on whether the League of Nations council would ask advisory opinions on disputes touching immigration, involving the United States.

Indeed, Europeans have the idea that underlying the American fifth reservation is the desire of that country to veto any attempt of the council to seek advisory opinions either on immigration problems or questions affecting the Monroe doctrine and Latin America.

The fifth American reservation provides that the court shall not, "without the consent of the United States, entertain any request for an advisory opinion touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest."

The American reservations are interpreted here as designed to prevent

7.75 Inches Of Rain Fell During August

Month Ending Sets Noble Record for Precipitation, Records Show.

As the month of August—which will be remembered mainly for its excessive rains—closes, September will mark its appearance today with fair weather and moderate temperature, according to the forecast of the local weather bureau issued by A. H. Scott. The temperature forecast ranges from 72 to 89 degrees, which is about the same as Tuesday's extremes of 72 and 88 degrees.

August did not deviate much from the average temperature to be expected at this time of the year, nor is it deserving of notoriety for its winds or other natural or unnatural phenomena, Mr. Scott said. But in the heavy showers, heavy and light rains and on several other days there were traces of rain. Mr. Scott stated.

The highest temperature reached during the month came last Monday when the mercury touched the 91-degree mark. This is considerably lower than the high of August, 1925, which was 100 degrees, the same as July of this year. The normal maximum temperature for August is 85.2 degrees. There were no unusual cool spells last month and the mean temperature of the month varied little from the normal mean of 77 degrees. The highest wind of the month was a 40-mile wind from the northwest on August 21. A 58-mile wind was the highest of August last year.

SMITH IS LEADING IN CAROLINA RACE FOR U. S. SENATE

Senator and Edgar Brown Expected To Figure in Runover—Shortridge Leads in California.

Columbia, S. C., August 31.—(AP)—Indications that United States Senator E. D. Smith and Edgar A. Brown would run a second race for the democratic senatorial nomination from South Carolina increased as additional returns came in late tonight from today's primary.

Figures from 1,246 of the 1,371 precincts in the state gave:

Edgar A. Brown, 53,888.
N. B. Dial, 29,497.
E. D. Smith, 60,340.

This gave a total tabulation of 143,825 votes. Only 125 precincts were missing. The figures are from all but two of the 46 counties in the state. Smith was attacked by Brown for voting for the world court proposal, while the senator replied that he stood on his party's platform. Brown said he would be for the world court if the United States joined the League of Nations.

Congressional Races.

Incomplete returns from the first, fifth and seventh congressional districts showed the incumbents leading.

In the first district Thomas S. McMillan had 6,339 to 3,719 for Shep Hutto.

W. F. Stevenson in the fifth district had polled 7,626 votes to 3,119 for Z. V. Davidson.

In the seventh district H. P. Fulton had 6,339 to 3,719 for Shep Hutto.

Get License To Sell Dirt, Andy Is Told

Gump Subdivision Can't Be Sold in Georgia Without License.

BY PAUL STEVENSON.
Here's a pretty howdy-do, as Poo Bah or somebody sings in "The Mikado."

Andy Gump had better be careful in handling his latest real estate promotion in the comic section of The Constitution.

Up at the capitol a vigilant official of the state of Georgia had an idea Tuesday and it came so suddenly it flabbergasted her. She is Mrs. H. H. Rainey, secretary of the state securities commission, and when she read something about Andy Gump's real estate plans the idea struck her smack dab in the face.

The idea was so big she ran out into the capitol corridors and button-holed everybody to tell 'em about it. Mrs. Rainey said Andy Gump faces a maximum penalty of a fine of $1,000, 12 months on the chain-gang and six months in jail, or all three.

Under the Georgia securities law a person must have a license to advertise and sell real estate located in a state other than Georgia and this license must be issued by the Georgia securities commission.

As Andy is at present advertising his new subdivision, he technically is violating the securities law of Georgia and the state's army and navy may be called out by Mrs. Rainey to take him into custody if he continues to do so.

Officials and Trophies for Constitution Swimming Meet

Bernard Neal (left), Dave Yates and Steve Hartney, three officials for the gigantic Constitution swimming meet to be held at Piedmont Lake on Saturday and Sunday, September 4 and 6, are shown holding the four magnificent silver trophies to be presented by The Constitution to high point winners in the four classes. The large cup held by Mr. Neal is to go to the best woman swimmer; the trophy in the hands of Mr. Yates, in the center, is to go to the high point winner in the men's class. The two beautiful cups held by Mr. Hartney are to be presented to the best swimmers in the girls' and boys' classes respectively.

INDICT OFFICERS OF BANK SYSTEM RECENTLY FAILED

Fulton Grand Jury Returns 15 True Bills Against Five Bankers Trust Executives.

W. D. Manley, president, and four other officers of the defunct Bankers' Trust company, today will be required to post bonds aggregating $100,000 when they are served with indictments returned Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury in connection with the failure of banks in Georgia and Florida, members of the corporation's chain.

Fifteen indictments—10 charging larceny after trust, three a misdemeanor and two a felony—were returned against the officials. Manley was indicted jointly with Paul J. Baker, treasurer; John D. Russell, assistant secretary; J. A. Sasser, vice president, and L. R. Adams, secretary of the defunct company, in eight indictments charging larceny after trust in connection with funds received from banks in Florida which, it is alleged, was converted to use of those named in the indictments.

Manley, who has spent the past several days in Piedmont sanitarium following a nervous collapse Tuesday, was reported to be "doing fine" by his attending physician, Dr. W. W. Young. Dr. Young declared that Manley would require a rest of several months on account of his highly nervous condition.

Collapse Follows Testimony.

The banker collapsed Friday night and was taken to the sanitarium following two hours on the witness stand, where he was called to testify in the hearings before United States Commissioner Joe Abbott in bankruptcy proceedings pending against him in federal court. This hearing was recessed Monday and will not be resumed until next week, according to agreement of counsel.

The federal grand jury of this district will convene this morning to begin a general and exhaustive investigation into the affairs of Manley, according to announcement by Clint W. Hager, district attorney. No indication as to what line the investigation will follow has been given further than that the grand jurors would cover Manley's activities in Atlanta and this district thoroughly. Officials and employees of banks which were members of the Bankers Trust

Yates To Write Articles On Training Swimmers

Dave Yates, assistant national director of first aid and life saving for the American Red Cross, who is in Atlanta to act as one of the officials for The Constitution's mammoth water carnival, will write for The Constitution a series of articles on training for a swimming meet.

The first of these articles will appear in next Thursday morning's issue of The Constitution.

Beside being a nationally-known athlete and director of athletics, Mr. Yates is a coach of great ability and his advice regarding training will be helpful to all swimmers who wish to get the best from the sport.

REWARD OFFERED FOR LYNCHERS

Governor Offers $500 for First Arrest and $100 Each for Others Identified.

Calling on Judge Harry D. Reed, of Waycross, to use every effort to bring to light the names of the men who formed a mob which lynched Dave Wright, at Douglas, Monday, Governor Clifford Walker Tuesday offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of the first man who took part in the lynching and $100 each for other members of the mob.

Governor Walker told Judge Reed, who is judge of the circuit in which Coffee county is located, that he commended the action of the judge in calling a special session of the grand jury and promised him the backing of all state agencies in the apprehension and conviction of the guilty men.

News dispatches from Douglas state that Judge Reed is now in that city in readiness for the grand jury probe Monday.

The reward was offered by the governor in a telegram to Sheriff W. M. Tanner, of Douglas county. In his telegram to Sheriff Tanner Governor Walker said:

"I have offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and proof to convict the first apprehended member of the mob which lynched Dave Wright, and $100 each for any other members of the mob. I respectfully charge you to exhaust all legitimate means to apprehend the guilty persons.

(Signed)

"CLIFFORD WALKER, Governor."

In his letter to Judge Reed Governor Walker said:

"I have noticed your action in calling a special meeting of the grand jury to investigate the lynching of

SCORES TO SWIM IN WATER RACES

Midnight Wednesday Is Time Limit for Filing Entries in Great Aquatic Carnival.

Time limit for the filing of entries for The Constitution's gigantic water carnival will be prolonged until midnight tonight and entries will be accepted by telephone. This concession was made at the request of several applicants who called The Constitution office late Tuesday and requested a few extra hours to allow entrance of their applications.

Many swimmers are returning to Atlanta from summer vacations and may wish to enter the contests, so The Constitution has decided to accept applications over the phone all day today. Call The Constitution and ask for the sports department.

The extension of time was made possible by the decision of the committee to stage the elimination contests on Saturday only rather than on Friday and Saturday, as was first planned. A number of capable officials have volunteered their services for the elimination contests and, with these men to aid The Constitution representatives, it will be possible to complete the eliminations in one day, despite the large number of contestants.

Prize List Grows. The list of prizes is steadily growing and with the four magnificent silver loving cups offered to high point winners in the four classes by The Constitution, to head the list, there promises to be a valuable prize for every winner and runner-up in the entire list of events.

With the arrival of Dave Yates, nationally-known athlete and assistant national director of first aid and life saving for the American Red Cross, to act as one of the officials in the

ATLANTA AERIAL MAILS TO START ON SEPTEMBER 15

Four-Passenger Cabin Plane to Carry Mails Between This City and Jacksonville.

Air mail service between Atlanta and Jacksonville will be inaugurated September 15 when a Stinson-Detroit four-passenger cabin plane takes the air from Candler field on the morning of that date bearing Florida mail pouches, it was announced Tuesday night by V. S. Chenea, vice president of the Florida Airways corporation, who is making temporary headquarters in this city.

On the first of the following month, according to Mr. Chenea, a regular passenger service between Atlanta and Jacksonville will begin, marking this city's first real advancement toward the establishment of airway connections with other cities throughout the United States.

Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, who has been active in promoting the Atlanta-Jacksonville extension, stated Tuesday night that he thought it probable that a regular passenger and mail line would be established between Atlanta and New York and other eastern points.

Under a tentative schedule outlined by the service, the plane leaving here September 15 will make the approximate 325 miles to Jacksonville in sufficient time to connect with the air route to Tampa. The entire distance of 815 miles to Tampa will be covered in approximately seven hours and a half.

Three Planes Bought.

Three Stinson-Detroit planes have been purchased by the company to serve on the Atlanta-Jacksonville extension, according to Mr. Chenea and the first of these ships will arrive here early next week. A pilot of the Florida Airways corporation leaves tomorrow to get the plane and to fly it back to Atlanta. The other ships will be brought in shortly afterwards.

This morning at 10:30 o'clock Postmaster E. K. Large, Mr. Hartsfield, Mr. Chenea and N. W. Potter, chief pilot for the organization, will make a final inspection of Candler field, with a view of completing every arrangement for the landing and starting of the mail ships at the Atlanta field.

The planes are to be piloted by L. S. Flo, who flew the first Tampa-Jacksonville air mail plane, and C. H. Ellison, who is said to have piloted

ISLAND OF FAYAL 'MASS OF RUINS' DECLARES MAYOR

Catastrophe Defied All Description, According to Message Sent to Lisbon by Horta Official.

24 PERSONS DEAD, SAYS ONE REPORT

Twelve Killed and More Than 100 Injured Within 30 Seconds. Wild Confusion Reigns on Island.

BY FERDINAND DA COSTA

(Copyright, 1926, by United News.) Horta, Azores Islands, September 1.—(Wednesday).—An earthquake struck the island of Fayal at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and within 30 seconds 12 persons were lying dead and more than 100 known injured. The total injured may reach 400 with 4,000 homeless.

Thousands of the inhabitants of the island ran wildly about in great confusion and as the clouds of dust caused by crumbling houses subsided, they viewed the ruins of what had been a quiet little town with white-washed houses nestling against a ridge of extinct volcanoes.

Hundreds were made homeless by the quake.

The inhabitants thronged to open spaces and poignant scenes were witnessed.

The injured were sped to hospitals, some in automobiles and some in the arms of relatives.

Family Is Killed. One man, who had just left his house to go to his work at the custom house when the quake shook the island, immediately ran back to find his home obliterated. Beneath the debris were his wife and little child—both dead.

Another man rushed from his house only to be killed by a huge piece of stone which was at that moment dislodged from the building.

Had the tremor come at night, with all the 20,000 people of Fayal indoors, the death toll probably would have been more appalling.

Order soon reigned again in Horta, as the police took charge of the town and troops and firemen patrolled the streets.

Automobiles were commandeered by the authorities to remove the dead and injured and to help prepare Horta for a night of fear.

Temporary Lighting. These preparations continued throughout the day and by evening a temporary lighting service was started to provide light for the two small parks where most of the inhabitants attempted to sleep through the night.

With the exception of these two parks, Horta appears like a city of the dead.

Cable stations suffered little damage. One building, occupied by the commercial and eastern companies, is a huge structure and soundly built.

HAMILTON LAUDS HOLDER'S SPEECH

"No campaign address delivered to Georgia voters in recent years so completely electrified the state as did the speech of John N. Holder, at Jefferson, last Saturday afternoon," declared Thomas J. Hamilton, editor of the Augusta Chronicle and manager of the Holder campaign for governor, in a statement issued Tuesday.

"This speech has made a tremendous impression all over the state. Campaign offices have been literally swamped with letters, telephone messages and telegrams requesting copies of the speech. Hundreds have come from almost as many counties asking for quantities of the address for distribution in their sections."

"When an order was placed with the printers for 100,000 copies it was thought this would be amply sufficient to meet the demand, but already requests have come for more than a quarter of a million copies and the end is not in sight."

Clear Up Situation.
"Mr. Holder's Jefferson speech has thoroughly clarified the political atmosphere. It has served to expose the camouflaged issues offered by his opponents and has shown how they have been industriously muddying the waters. The false issues and the false charges have given way before this speech as does chaff before a strong wind and as does fog before a noon-day sun."

"Mr. Holder's opponents have been thrown into a panic. They have been routed by the powerful barrage laid down in his address and they are frantically striving to reform their lines and work out a new plan of campaign. They know now, if indeed they have not known it all the time, that they will not be allowed to conceal the fact that the real issue in this campaign is whether Georgia shall be mortgaged with a big bond issue."

"Mr. Holder's opponents and voters

If you want to learn what the best beverage is give a youngster a nickel and watch him streak for a
RED ROCK GINGER ALE

of Georgia know that almost invariably the levying of bonds in vast amounts by states has been followed by the levying of an income and other irritating and burdensome taxes.

Bond Plan Analyzed.

"It is now a widely known fact that in 1927 the state will have $13,000,000 for highway purposes, of which $10,000,000 will be available for new construction and the remaining three million for maintenance and operating expenses."

"Thus $70,000,000 will be available within the next seven years for new construction on the pay-as-you-go plan, while the fondest and most aggressive bond advocates have contended that it would require around only about $70,000,000 to $75,000,000 to give the state a system of paved highways within seven years. 'Efforts to make it appear that Mr. Holder is not in favor of paved roads have utterly failed just as have the multiplicity of other false charges against him. Everyone knows Mr. Holder is a consistent advocate of improved highways and that he is also very determined in his efforts to save the people of the state $40,000,000 which the bond advocates would incur in the form of interest charges on a bond issue and for which the people would not derive a penny's worth of value."

Bonds Not an Issue.

"In their frantic efforts to make it appear that bonds are not an issue and that a governor has nothing to do with the action of the legislature, Mr. Holder's opponents betray the weakness of their whole case. Every voter expects a candidate for governor to take a positive stand on the vital issues facing the state and every voter desires to vote for a governor who will have sufficient force and influence to provide protection for the interests of the state. Otherwise, why are Mr. Holder's opponents, every one of them, proclaiming from stump to stump a set of alleged issues and declaring themselves for or against certain things?"

"If a governor has no influence with the legislature, why do they bother to promulgate a platform?"

"Just another absurdity. 'Mr. Holder's election is assured and by the most tremendous majority any gubernatorial candidate has ever received. All who run—even the opposition candidates—may read the signs."

PLAYGROUND FUND APPROVAL SEEN

Unanimous approval of the finance committee at a special called session Thursday morning at 11 o'clock of proposal to provide $4,000 for operation of city playgrounds for remainder of the year was forecast Monday.

The paper will come from the parks committee of city council and will be sponsored by Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward, chairman of the parks body. Other members of the parks committee also will be present to urge passage of the measure.

Funds for conducting a supervised month are already in the hands of play programs for Atlanta children for the parks committee, Mr. White said, and the finance committee and city council will be asked to express its approval of year-round operation by voting the $4,000 to run them until January 1, when an adequate fund to operate them for next year will be asked.

Hundreds of youngsters Monday celebrated resumption of the playgrounds at the 23 Atlanta play centers. The recreational parks are opened at 3 o'clock every afternoon and close at 5:30 o'clock.

The finance body of council will meet at 11 o'clock Thursday morning.

MARIST COLLEGE WILL BE UNDER NEW PRESIDENT

The Rev. Michael Carter, new president of Marist college, who succeeded the Rev. James Horton, will be in charge of the school when it opens for the 1926-27 session Thursday, September 9.

While their old duties will be retained by the Rev. D. S. Rankin, principal; Joe Bean, athletic director; and Major Eugene Schmidt, head of the military department, some changes in the rest of the faculty are planned, the president stated.

Free Accounting Course.

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be offered a course in accounting starting Monday night, September 13, under the direction of

E. W. Gottenstrater, C. P. A., according to an announcement by J. F. Gordy, secretary of the organization, who said that no charge would be made for the instruction. Mr. Gottenstrater was formerly a member of the faculty of St. Louis university, and is now resident manager of Touche-Nevin company, a nationally-known firm of public accountants.

Sims Discusses Issues In Poplar Springs Talk

Mayor Walter A. Sims spoke at a political meeting held last night at Poplar Springs, located on the south Pecan river line. The mayor discussed the paramount issues in the congressional campaign and declared: "Since the world war, increased taxes have burdened the producer, manufacturer and laborer practically to the point of confiscation. Corrective legislative relief is necessary, so that the purchasing power of the people will not be curtailed and disturb general business conditions."

"A further reduction of the present burdensome income tax and its final repeal, which, consistent, is desirable to many taxpayers. You should elect to office that man who will take off his coat and work for more efficiency in consolidating governmental bureaus. As mayor of Atlanta I have always preached and practiced economy in the affairs of city government."

The south, and especially Georgia, is fast becoming an industrial section. Let us extend a cordial welcome to industry through the use of attractive inducements and sell large employers of labor the idea of their locating here. We have the climate, cheap fuel, ample hydroelectric power and a labor situation that is unsurpassed anywhere. Enjoying all these blessings, and with the raw materials right at our back door, Georgia can compete successfully with any other industrial center in the country."

"I strongly favor restrictive immigration, and the protection of labor in industry. I am going to work hard for increased appropriations to combat the obnoxious weevils, insects and fleas that are devastating our crops, to such tremendous loss to the farmer."

Opposes World Court. "Certain interests are doing their best to drag us into the world court. I believe we should follow the all-wise policies laid down by such real Americans as Washington, Jefferson and Monroe. I therefore oppose any legislation that would make us a member of the world court."

"Both of my opponents have denied the charge that I have repeatedly made against them, that of inefficiency in public office. In reply I would only ask you to inspect their records. I again repeat that they are in collusion in this campaign to beat me. Mr. Steele is openly stating in Rockdale county that if Mr. Sims would want to vote for me, tell them to vote for Upshaw. However, my record as mayor of Atlanta is an open book and I am asking you to inspect for congress in the primaries on that record."

The mayor announced he would speak at the James L. Key school building, Wednesday night at the corner of Capitol avenue and Little street, at 8:30.

LABOR PUBLICATION WILL WELCOME PROBE

Washington, August 31.—(AP)—Edward Keating, editor of Labor, official organ of American railroad labor organizations, said today he welcomed a senatorial inquiry into activities of the publication in the Wisconsin senatorial campaign as demanded by Senator La Follette, who is seeking reelection on the republican ticket.

In a telegram to Chairman Reed of the senate campaign funds committee, Keating said: "I trust you will promptly convey your committee in response to Senator La Follette's demand that it ascertain who paid for a special edition of Labor sent into Wisconsin in the present campaign."

"Every charge made by Senator La Follette is foolishly false," Keating added. "Senator La Follette is doing nothing to do with the special edition except that at our request he wrote a number of progressives that we were prepared to supply them with copies. The total cost of the edition was less than $5,000 and every penny was contributed by the organized railroad workers."

STATE SPELLING BEE RULES ARE OUTLINED

Details of the state spelling contest which will be held at the Southeastern fair this fall were outlined by Oscar Mills, secretary of the Fair association, in a letter sent to Port E. Land, state superintendent of schools, and made public Tuesday by Mr. Land.

The contest was held in 1925 when boys and girls representing forty counties in the state entered the contest. It is expected that there will be a much larger representation this year.

Eleven prizes, ranging from $5.00 to $100.00 will be given the winning contestants by the Fair association. Each county may send one representative (boy or girl) to be chosen by the county superintendent by competitive method, securing the strongest representative. Any alternate should be chosen by the same method to represent the county in case the principal cannot come. The name and address of the contestant should be sent to the office of Mr. Mills by September 27.

STATE UNIVERSITY TO INAUGURATE FRESHMAN WEEK

Athens, Ga., August 31.—(AP)—Plans have been completed for Freshman week, an innovation at the University of Georgia, whereby students entering the state institution for the first time will be required to report in Athens September 8, a week in advance of other classes, to become oriented to university procedure before classwork begins. During the week the first-year students will attend lectures, stand intelligence tests, meet with their advisers, and in general become acclimated to the new life which will be theirs at a university.

The formal opening of the 1926-27 session of the University of Georgia will be held on September 15, with L. A. Downs, president of the Central of Georgia railway, as the principal speaker.

'WHAT TIME IS IT' SERVICE HALTED BY WESTERN UNION

There are too many people in Atlanta who are either without watches or clocks, or who are too particular about their coordinating with the hands on the face of the Western Union clock. As a result, the practice of the Western Union in giving out the time of day over the telephone has become a matter of history.

The service was discontinued Tuesday by W. K. Phillips, city superintendent, who declared that eight trunk lines were kept busy during the day and most of the night supplying the right time to something like 8,000 people every 24 hours.

The Postal Telegraph company will continue supplying the answer to the question: "What time is it, please?" although it maintains no regular department for the service, it is said.

He was a member of the Knights of Pythias, Woodmen of the World, Red Men and I. O. O. F. He was also a member of the Methodist church.

TOBACCO SEASON BREAKS RECORD

Macon, Ga., August 31.—(AP)—Georgia's most successful tobacco season came to a close today, markets not closing heretofore winding up the seasonal activity with comparatively light sales of inferior leaf in most instances.

At Douglas 60,000 pounds of leaf were sold, bringing the total sales at that market for the season to 7,500,000 pounds, which is 1,000,000 pounds more than was sold by a other market in the state, it is claimed.

The sales at Tifton for the season totaled 4,487,180 pounds, bringing $1,013,159.96 to the growers of that county.

Buyers were leaving the tobacco belt tonight.

The record of sales:

Markets	Lbs. Sold	Amt. Pd.	Av. Pr.
Douglas	60,000	$2,000.00	33.33
Blacksburg	29,000	12,210.00	42.10

BETTIS NEAR DEATH AS HURTS DEVELOP INTO MINIGITIS

Washington, August 31.—(AP)—Lieutenant Cyrus K. Bettis, army aviator injured in a crash in Pennsylvania last week, has developed spinal meningitis and his condition is critical.

Bettis' parents in Fort Huron, Mich., have been notified of the complications in his condition and it is expected they will come to Washington.

The aviator is at Walter Reed hospital, where he was brought by airplane from Bellefonte, Pa. At that time it was announced by hospital physicians that his condition was satisfactory and his recovery anticipated, despite a broken leg, fractures of both jaws and body injuries.

KLANSMEN WINNERS IN HERRIN ELECTION

Herrin, Ill., August 31.—(AP)—A Ku Klux Klan supported ticket triumphed here today in a quiet election for the selection of a judge of the city court, despite rumors of impending trouble. Two Illinois national guard officers, acting as observers for Adjutant General Black, cooperated with the police in the election.

R. T. Cook, former judge of the city court, was returned to the office over Charles C. Murray and Judge E. N. Bowen, the incumbent, both of whom were said to have support of the anti-klan element.

OPPORTUNITY SCHOOL READY FOR OPENING

Everything is in readiness for a big year at the Opportunity school, 1012 West Mitchell street, according to school officials.

Registration books were opened Tuesday and indications show that the enrollment for 1926 will be larger than in the past, it was said.

It is considered probable by school authorities that the increased number of industries recently attracted to the city will be reflected in the enlarged enrollment in the part-time continuation school this year. Anticipating this, new courses have been added in the departments of office practice, typewriting and business English, and other courses will be arranged for according to demand. A fee of $1 is charged for registration and this, together with the cost of a student's books, is the only charge made for instruction.

Archaeology Help To Fundamentalists, Asserts Preacher

Archaeology has proved the staunchest and most effective ally of the fundamentalist in upholding the literal truth of the Bible against the onslaughts of modernism, the Rev. Arthur H. Carter, British fundamentalist leader, told an audience that overflowed the Rader revival auditorium here his lecture Tuesday night.

Building up a scholarly defense of the literal truth of the Scriptures, Dr. Carter reviewed scientific disclosures made during the last 12 years which corroborate Biblical history and Biblical geography in most of the important details which have been ridiculed by modernist teachers.

Dr. Carter, although a preacher of the same fundamentalist doctrines as the Rev. Luke Rader, who preceded him in a five-week revival campaign, is conducting a different type of service from his predecessor. Mr. Rader conducted a smashing, two-fisted revival campaign to win new converts to the faith and drew several hundred in response to the altar call. Dr. Carter is lecturing on the Bible to supply new information to those who already have accepted the faith in order to strengthen their position in overcoming arguments of modernists and unbelievers.

State Treasury Pays $1,000,000 In Single Day

By issuing warrants totaling approximately $1,000,000 for the payment of the third quarter of Confederate pensions and to supply funds for opening the common schools, the state of Georgia demonstrated Tuesday that the condition of the treasury is better than at any time in the last twenty years.

More than $500,000 worth of warrants for the third quarter pensions of $50 each for the veterans. This will make $750 paid the veterans this year as compared to $100 at this time a year ago.

Ordinary Thomas H. Jeffries announced that the third quarter pensions would be paid Fulton county veterans at his office Wednesday.

The money for the common schools represents 10 per cent of the annual appropriation. This is the first time in 30 years the schools have received cash from the state treasury prior to December 1 and usually the governor has to use his borrowing power to obtain funds to keep the schools going until the regular appropriation is available.

BOY IS DRWONED BUT GIRL ESCAPES

the bank with her he looked back and could not see his cousin. At first he thought Charles had also swum to the shore, but soon discovered that he was still in the water.

He then raced more than 200 yards to the dam of the pond where some men were at work and summoned help. They rushed back and took the boy from the hole, where the two had slipped. He was carried to Ayvalide in a high-powered automobile to a physician, but resuscitation methods were futile.

According to the story told by Sidney, only about 20 minutes elapsed from the time they first heard their companion's cries and when they arrived in Ayvalide. No trace of pulse heat could be found by physicians when they examined Charles, but they spent about 20 minutes in an effort to revive him.

Thought Boy Could Swim.
The children had thought young Mason could swim, they said Tuesday night. Charles, evidently in a playful manner, they said, had told them he could swim and they had not noticed him particularly when near deep water. All thought they were very shallow water.

I was wading just in front of Charles," Edna said "and when he stepped into the hole, he came in after me. I did not feel him touch me after we both slipped in the hole and I didn't know much of what happened until Sidney dragged me to the bank."

Edna and Charles were in the hole before I knew what was happening," Sidney said Tuesday night. "Mary Nell and Edith pointed them out to me and they thought they were just playing, but I knew there was something wrong and I jumped out of the boat and swam to them."

Edna came to the surface and I carried her to the bank but I never saw Charles afterwards. We were about 25 yards away from the hole in the boat at the time and I went to them as quickly as I could after we noticed them struggling.

"I thought at the time that Charles could swim and after I took Edna out of the water I thought that Charles had gone to the bank, too. But I looked back and saw he was still in the water and I ran down to the mill pond dam and got some men to help me."

First reports of the drowning were that Charles had slipped into the hole in the creek bank and drowned himself. Although the children were together at the time they never touched each other after falling into the hole, according to the four children.

The body of the boy was removed to the home on DeKalb avenue. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Mason, are prostrated with grief. In addition to the parents, only one little brother, Newton Mason, survives the boy.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed late Tuesday night. Blinhardt Brothers are in charge.

Commander Rodgers Buried As Planes Drone Over Grave

HERO OF AIR RESTS IN ARLINGTON

Washington, August 31.—(AP)—Commander John Rodgers, a naval aviation pioneer, who gave his life in the development of the science of flying, was buried today among the illustrious dead of the nation in Arlington national cemetery.

Full military honors were accorded the officer who a year ago to the day had set out upon an attempted flight from San Francisco to Hawaii which was to bring him a measure of fame such as comes to few navy men in peace times.

Gathered at the grave site as the simple Episcopal burial service was read were the father, the last of the long line of John Rodgers, who have served the navy since the days of John Paul Jones, the mother, and high officers of the navy, the army and the marine corps.

Commander Rodgers' body was brought to Washington by motor today from the ancestral home at Havre de Grace, Maryland, where funeral services were held yesterday. The casket was transferred to a caisson drawn by six horses.

Led by the naval band playing Chopin's funeral march, the cortege moved along the winding roads of the cemetery to the spot picked as the last resting place—a grave in the midst of four towering oaks near that of William Worth Belknap, secretary of war under President Grant.

As the procession advanced, the music of the band was almost lost to those waiting at the grave by the drone of five naval airplanes soaring overhead in black file formation.

The officers' symbol that one of their number was missing.

Behind the naval band marched a company of marines, followed by two companies of sailors, this honor guard filing to places near the burial plot. The bodybearers then bore the flag-draped casket to the grave as the band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

The ministers intoned the burial service and the marines fired three volleys. There was silence for a moment, then the clear notes of a bugle sounded "taps"—the navy's farewell to its dead.

unprecedented following his death. S. George Ullman, manager of Valentino, said the daily income from "The Son of The Sheik" will run from $25,000 to $30,000 for an indefinite period.

Valentino will not take his last leave of Broadway until Friday. His body will spend another night in Campbell's funeral church, awaiting the brother's arrival.

The body will leave New York for Hollywood Friday night at 6:30 p. m., on the Lake Shore limited, Ullman announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Ullman will accompany the body. Pola Negri will also travel in a special car.

Valentino Fortune Swelled By Interest Shown in Death

MILLION IN SIGHT FOR BROTHER AND SISTER

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)
New York, August 31.—The fortune of Rudolph Valentino, estimated at more than a million, potentially, will go in full to Albert Gagliardi, brother of the dead screen star, who tomorrow will reach here on the Homeric and to his sister, Marie, who is in Italy.

It was learned today that the estate of the great lover of films has been swelled by about $300,000 since his death through the showing all over the United States of his latest picture, "Son of The Sheik."

This amount was realized in the larger cities where the demand for a sight of filium's favorite son has been mer for remuneration had 7,898 votes, to 5,272 for E. M. Dapre, and 929 for D. R. Sturkie.

In the twelfth judicial circuit L. M. Gasque with 1,533 was trailing C. M. W. Muldrow with 1,724. These returns were all from Horry county.

SHORTTRIDGE IS LEADING IN CALIFORNIA RACE.
San Francisco, August 31.—(AP)—United States Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, Coolidge republican, running for re-nomination in today's primary election, tonight was more than 2,300 votes ahead of his anti-coolidge court opponent, Robert M. Clarke, on the face of incomplete returns from 900 out of 8,274 California precincts. The figures: Shortridge 24,422, Clarke 10,132.

FLAHERTY CONFERS WITH PRESIDENT

By RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Paul Smiths, N. Y., August 31.—Somewhat dissatisfied after his recent conference with Secretary of State Kellogg, Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of the Knights of Columbus will call on President Coolidge tomorrow and undertake to set him straight as to the policy of this powerful society of the Catholic church regarding the Mexican religious controversy.

Three seasons appear to have moved Flaherty to press for this conference with Coolidge, who had previously referred him to Secretary Kellogg.

First, the conference with Kellogg was somewhat unsatisfactory to the Knights of Columbus and was marked by a feeling of tension. Flaherty appeared to feel that Kellogg did not quite sympathize with the policy of the Knights of Columbus.

Sees Misrepresentation.
Second, Flaherty feels that the position of the Knights has been misrepresented and exaggerated. While the order is extremely hostile to the Calles program, it does not go so far as to ask that the United States directly intervene. Flaherty will be content if this government will rigorously protect American lives and property whenever they are involved in Mexico.

Third, Flaherty has data on the Mexican situation which he believes the president should see before his ap proaching conference with Ambassador Sheffield, who has returned from Mexico to urge a firmer attitude upon his government.

INCREASE ASKED IN BORDER PATROL TO BAR ALIENS
Washington, August 31.—A larger border patrol is needed to keep out the flood of aliens who are now slipping over through all sorts of ruses some of them crawling under the girders of Niagara Falls bridge, Immigration Commissioner Harry E. Hull declared today on his return from a trip along the Canadian boundary.

He indicated he would ask congress for more money, saying that it is impossible to enforce the law with the present force.

"Practically the entire extent of adjacent foreign contiguous territory is filled with aliens who are at this time seeking admission to this country," Hull said.

"There are no doubt considerable numbers of organized smuggling activities designed to aid the alien in gaining unlawful admission. It appears that the aliens with whom we have to contend in this respect usually gain admission to the adjacent foreign territory by claiming agriculturalists."

Once there, he said, every used to get over the border.

Worries About Sick Wife---Now She's Well
Because his wife had stomach trouble, T. Williams worried a great deal. He got her to try the mixture of buckwheat bark, glycerine, etc. (known as Adierka) and now his worries are over. She says she feels like a new woman.

What Doctors Say.
Dr. G. Eggers reports Adierka is the best medicine he has used in 20 years. Dr. W. H. Bernhart writes he could not get along in his practice without Adierka. Dr. J. J. Weaver, a doctor for 30 years, says he knows no medicine better than Adierka.

Dr. F. Langlois prescribes Adierka regularly with GOOD effect.
J. E. Burgess writes: "After using Adierka I feel better than for 20 years. ANFEL impurities were eliminated from my system."

Adierka is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary laxatives and stomach medicines because of its REAL, but quick action. Jacobs' Pharmacy and other leading druggists.—(adv.)

3-CORNERED RACE SEEN IN OREGON
Portland, Oregon, August 31.—(AP)—Oregon faces a three-cornered race for the United States senatorship at November election, as a result of the announcement today by Senator Robert N. Stanford that he would be an independent candidate to succeed himself.

Stanford, who was defeated at the May primary for the republican nomination, said he would accept nomination which is expected to be given him by a group of supporters at a special meeting. An independent candidate can be named in this state by 100 votes. The republican nominee is Frederick Steiner, of Pendleton, and the democratic candidate is Bert E. Hanes, former shipping board member.

Stanford declared he had been the victim of unfair tactics in the primary campaign through the circulation of a "yellow ticket" which listed him among candidates, inferentially endorsed by the Ku Klux Klan.

BANNER YEAR SEEN FOR TEXTILE MILLS IN GRIFFIN AREA
Griffin, Ga., August 31.—(Special)—Increased demand for cotton goods that has become widespread throughout the country has already been felt in Griffin and will result in a good year for the local textile mills, it was stated by Griffin manufacturing leaders today.

Executives of local mills say they already have noted increased demands. They expressed the belief that conditions would result in full-time operation for many months. Local cotton men are decidedly more optimistic than they were a few weeks ago.

They believe the demand for cotton goods will continue to show an increase. Griffin's weekly payroll runs over $65,000 and the city in general always enjoys added prosperity when the mills are running on full time.

Sims Indorsed For Congress

I note that a number of your friends have written letters testifying as to your fitness for the position to which you aspire and I wish to add my recommendation.

I think you have made one of the best Mayors that Atlanta has ever had and I know that if the citizens of this District send you to Congress you will make equally as good a record in that body.

I take pleasure in advising I am going to support you personally and wish you every success.

Sincerely yours,
NATHAN BEDFORD FORREST,
Grand Dragon K. K. K. Realm of Ga.

I read with a great deal of interest the announcement that you had decided to offer to represent this district in Congress and I wish to assure you of my cordial good wishes for your success.

I have watched with a great deal of interest your able administration of the important office of Mayor of Atlanta and regret that under our city charter you are not eligible to serve another term. I feel that you are in close touch with the commercial, industrial and agricultural needs of this district and if elected to Congress you will give us, in that high office, the same capable and business-like service you have rendered to the people of Atlanta during your administration as Mayor. Under your progressive leadership the city has gone steadily forward and never before in its history was it in a stronger position than at this time.

I, therefore, hope you may be successful in your race for Congress and I personally will be glad to support you.

Yours very truly,
ROBERT F. MADDOX,
Chairman of the Board, Atlanta and Lowry National Bank.

I have considered with interest your announcement as a candidate for Congress from this District. It is a pleasure to express my interest in your candidacy and to assure you that it will be my pleasure to heartily support you.

I have known you for a great many years, having had the pleasure of practicing with you at the Atlanta bar for some twenty years. As a lawyer you were careful and painstaking with your clients, aggressive in their defense and generally successful in the outcome of your cases. I appreciate the friendship which we formed when we were fellow lawyers and have a high regard for your ability. As mayor of Atlanta you have made an enviable record. Your every interest has apparently been devoted to the upbuilding of our city and your efforts in Atlanta's behalf entitle you to the grateful regard of her citizens.

I trust you may be successful in your race and if you are, I bespeak for you continued success in the halls of Congress.

With my regards, I am,
Sincerely yours,
E. R. BLACK,
President Atlanta Trust Co.

Having learned that you have announced your entry into the race for Congress, I am writing to assure you of my support.

In your first race for Mayor of Atlanta I did not vote for you because I did not know you, your ability, or how well suited you were for the position.

You made such an admirable record as Mayor of Atlanta that in your second race you had my whole-hearted support.

It will give me a great deal of pleasure not only to vote for you for our next Congressman, but in any way in which I can consistently help you, I will help. With high regards, I am, sincerely yours,
MELL R. WILKINSON.

I have for acknowledgment yours of the 26th formally notifying me that you have entered the race for Congress from this district and will appreciate my support.

The service that you have at all times tried to render to the citizens of Atlanta, of course, would commend you to my support, but my friendship to you and my belief that you would serve well this district makes it a pleasure for me to support you in any way it is possible for me to do, and with an expression of hearty best wishes for success, I am,

Yours very truly,
WM. CANDLER.

This acknowledges receipt of yours of May 27th and I am glad to hear that you have entered the race for Congress and I shall do what I can to further your candidacy.

We are entitled to a strong man to represent us in Congress and your record in public office is such as to command your favorably to the consideration of the voters. I trust you will be elected.

Yours very truly,
W. CARROLL LATIMER.

I have learned with a great deal of pleasure that you have decided to enter the race for Congress representing the Fifth District. You have proven to be a safe, conscientious and practical business Mayor of Atlanta and for that reason I intend supporting you.

Yours very truly,
JOSEPH JACOBS.

To the Voters of the Fifth Congressional District:

Hon. Walter A. Sims, a candidate for Congress from the Fifth Congressional District—I shall vote for him not only on account of long personal friendship, but on account of the splendid record he has made while filling for two terms the important office of Mayor of Atlanta.

His services have been honest, patriotic, intelligent and progressive. He has shown himself to be a worthy public servant. It is my opinion that no one is more capable of representing, in a vigorous, intelligent and broad-minded way, the interests of the Fifth Congressional District.

Very truly yours,
REUBEN R. ARNOLD.

Your letter of May 27 received, and I think you should be elected to the House of Representatives from this district, because it is my honest belief that you would make a better Congressman than the present Representative.

I take pleasure in endorsing you, and sincerely hope that you will have no trouble in being elected.

With kindest personal regards, I am,
Yours sincerely,
H. B. TROUTMAN.

I have known Hon. Walter A. Sims since he was a boy, and I knew his honored old father before him. I have watched his career with pride and interest. I have seen him develop from a raw country boy into an able and successful lawyer, a useful and upright citizen and a courageous and patriotic public servant. I believe the people of the fifth district will find in Mr. Sims a faithful and capable representative in Congress and I sincerely hope he will be nominated on September 8.

Respectfully,
SHEPARD BRYAN,
Former Judge Superior Court.

The reason I am writing you is to assure you of my support in your race for Congress. In doing this I believe I am supporting a man who, without any question, will give this district most gratifying service possible. We can only judge the future by the past and your record as mayor of this city is an evident fact of your ability, honesty and integrity of purpose.

With kindest regards and best wishes, I am,
Yours very truly,
JOHN M. McCULLOUGH.

While The Constitution in conformity with its time-honored custom, takes no part in a contest for Congress among local aspirants, you are at liberty to say for me that in my opinion Atlanta never had a better mayor than you have been.

Your administration has been characterized by marked ability and the city has never made greater progress in material achievement than it has during the period of your incumbency.

Very truly yours,
CLARK HOWELL.

I note with interest and pleasure that you have announced for Congress and that you propose to make an active campaign.

It would, indeed, be a source of gratification to the rank and file of the population of the important Fifth District of Georgia to have as their representative a man of your character and ability; one who, by nature and training, is alive to the needs and the wishes of our citizenry and has the courage and energy to accomplish results.

I will be glad to render any assistance in my power in furtherance of your candidacy.

Sincerely your friend,
CLARENCE BELL.

1. I am very pleased to reply to your letter of August 7.

2. I believe you have made Atlanta an efficient executive, and that your term as Mayor has been marked by conscientious application to the duties of your office. The constructive progress which Atlanta has made during your administration has been a source of deep gratification to me. You may certainly rely upon my wholehearted support in your race for Congress.

3. If there is any service I may render you, please command me.

Sincerely yours,
EARLE YANCEY.

Just a word of commendation on your decision to make the race for Congress and a brief expression of justification over the probability of having a man of your character, ability and worth to represent this great section of the grand old State of Georgia.

All Georgia should be acquainted with your wonderful administration as Mayor of Atlanta—undoubtedly one of the best and most progressive mayoralty administrations we have had, even considering the policy of utmost economy which was forced upon you. It is my profound belief that you would be an honor and an asset to Georgia in the halls of Congress.

I would be derelict in my duty as a citizen and my friendship for you should I fail to exert myself in aiding you to win the election.

In wishing you success in your campaign, you may be assured that I shall not fail you.

Sincerely yours,
P. V. BERGEN,
Secretary Georgia Petal Food Dealers' Association

I am simply writing a line to express my great pleasure over the fact that you have announced for Congress from this district. The record of your service as Mayor of the great city of Atlanta stamps you as a progressive, able and conscientious official. This district is entitled to a man of this character to represent it in the National Congress.

If there is anything I can do to assist you in your race, please command me.

Sincerely yours,
MARION SMITH.

I have known the Honorable Walter A. Sims for a great many years, having tried cases with and against him, and feel that I am in position to make a fair estimate of his character and true merit.

He is a man of unusual ability and has the natural gifts of a legislator. No man can question his loyalty to his friends, which is to him not only a theory but a practice, and from this naturally follows a supreme loyalty to his state and section. He is energetic and aggressive, alive to his responsibilities and has the mind of a trained lawyer. With this equipment, he cannot fail, when elected, to protect the interests of this District in Congress.

The addition of this able young Democrat on our forces in Washington will strengthen the position of the Democratic party in the National Capitol.

The voters of the Fifth Congressional District will make no mistake in casting their ballots for the Honorable Walter A. Sims in the coming primary.

Very truly,
JOHN A. HYND

businesslike administration, one marked by achievements and progressive accomplishments not surpassed by any of your predecessors in the Mayor's office, and I feel confident that if the electorate of the Fifth District of Georgia will send you as our representative to Congress of the United States, the Capital District of the Empire State of the South will be capably, creditably and ably represented, and the great commercial, financial and industrial interests of the Fifth District of Georgia will be properly safeguarded by you.

With best wishes for your success, and with assurance of my personal esteem, I am, yours very truly,

COURTLAND S. WINN.

I wish to assure you of my sincere support in your present race. You have served Atlanta faithfully and well and I know you will fulfill all the expectations of your friends as congressman from the Fifth District.

By training and experience you are fitted to discharge the duties of the office you now seek. As this is so generally understood throughout the district, I feel sure of your election.

With sincerest good wishes, I am,
Yours very truly,
BOLLING JONES.

Your race should appeal strongly to the average, normal type of citizen, who believes in conservative, constructive aid to the community rather than emotionalism and radicalism. We need some one to represent the people as a whole instead of a small and biased minority. I think you have the necessary poise and equipment, and am delighted to support you.

Sincerely yours,
W. A. FULLER

It will give me a great deal of pleasure to aid you in securing the largest number of votes in your race for Congress. I assure you that I will give you any assistance I can in enabling you to obtain this high office.

Yours very truly,
ASA G. CANDLER, JR.

It is with much pleasure I received the announcement of your entering the race for Congress to represent this district. There are countless good reasons why you should be elected. I pledge my whole-hearted support to your candidacy.

Yours very truly,
T. L. McBRAYER,
Business Agent Street Railway Local 732.

I have known Walter A. Sims, Mayor of the City of Atlanta, for the past twenty-odd years. He is a man whose character is above reproach; he is capable, conscientious and a man of ability. I commend him to the voters of the Fifth District as a man worthy of their support for the office of Congressman.

Respectfully,
HARRY MAY.

My conviction that you are fair and able to represent the fifth district in a constructive and creditable manner, leads me to support you in your race for Congress, and I strongly hope that you will be elected.

It is a pleasure to support you and do what I can in furtherance of your candidacy.

Very truly,
C. W. CUNNINGHAM,
President, Georgia Federation of Labor.

Knowing that you have entered the race for Congress, I should like to take this opportunity of assuring you of my hearty support. Your honest and conscientious efforts in all matters pertaining to the best interests of our city have always been admired by the writer and should be rewarded by your election as our representative in Washington.

Any help or support that I can give you during your coming campaign will be a pleasure.

Sincerely yours,
LEROY W. CHILDS.

I wish to assure you of my hearty support in your race for Congress from this district. I feel that your legal and business training particularly fits you to represent us and in addition to this I wish to show my gratitude for your enthusiastic support of Grady Hospital, in the care of the poor sick of our city, while you were mayor.

Sincerely yours,
H. R. DONALDSON.

During your administration my civic duties have placed me in rather close touch with your office and it is a pleasure to testify to your unflinching cooperation in the economical expenditure of the taxpayers' money.

You have made a good mayor and I shall be glad to support you in your race for Congress.

Faithfully yours,
T. C. ERWIN.

On my return from Europe, I wish to remind you of my offer prior to my departure to support your candidacy for Congress. My services are at your command and I would feel highly gratified if any effort on my part assisted in sending to Washington to able a representative of the Fifth Congressional District.

It is with sincerity that I wish you the fullest of success and request your demands upon me for any assistance I may be able to render.

Sincerely yours,
JESSE DRAPER.

WALTER A. SIMS

FOR CONGRESS

Primary September 8th, 1926

RUSSELL BLAMES UNREST ON COURT

In the first personal statement he has issued in the campaign Judge Richard B. Russell Tuesday made public his views of the issues in race for the United States senate.

Judge Russell is chief justice of the supreme court of Georgia and his statement said he entered the race for the senate against United States Senator Walter F. George "purely as a matter of conviction and duty, totally divorcing any personal interest and ambition whatsoever."

The statement of Judge Russell follows: "News from all over the world is reflecting a great deal of light upon the issues involved in the campaign for the United States senate. From Geneva where the world court and the League of Nations are meeting comes reports that at their first opportunity the foreign powers have recommended the perpetual rows and quarrels which have always characterized European politics and diplomacy. Cancellation of war debts is a favorite topic of discussion. Spain threatens to withdraw from the league unless given a mandate over Tangiers. Italy backs her claim. Great Britain says that Spain cannot have Tangiers. In Central America Nicaragua asserts to the world court with a request that Mexico be punished for something that Mexico has done.

Unrest Is Cited. "There is a spirit of unrest and envy among the nations of Europe today which surely points to future trouble and justifies the feeling now uppermost in the minds of the fathers and mothers of Georgia, and renews emotions they experienced when bidding their sons a sad farewell in 1918. They see that a call will come, all too soon, for their sons to again cross the seas to enforce some judgment of the world court of the League of Nations if America is to be called to the prejudices and hatreds that exist in the foreign nations today, as Senator George would have us bound.

"Every patriotic American would gladly pledge the last dollar of our money and the life of every citizen to defend our country or its institutions in the League of Nations. It is inconceivable that Senator George and the other internationalists undertake to defend such an internal machine as this world court, when it appeared certain that the authority to enforce its decisions by war, and that under present conditions it is a certainty that if we remain in this world court of the League of Nations American lives will be spent, American blood will be spilled, and billions of American money will be wasted in foreign lands in wars that do not and should not even remotely concern us.

"As stated when I announced for the United States senate, I entered this fight purely as a matter of conviction and duty, totally divorcing any personal interest or ambition whatsoever. When it appeared certain that no one else would make the fight against the world court and the League of Nations, I claim no monetary gain on patriotism. I see so clearly the ultimate destruction of our government if we do not cautiously follow the teachings of Washington, Jefferson, Madison and the founders of our country, that I could not and cannot stand idly by and see the sacred institutions of our country overthrown without a protest.

Criticism George. "In declining to discuss the issues of the present campaign for the United States senate, Judge Russell declared that the world court issue was settled and that the world court of the League of Nations had become an academic question. It is clear this campaign cry of 'dead issue' proceeded either from ignorance or insincerity. During the year it has been the sole issue in five senatorial races, and in each of them the senators who stood with Senator George and voted for this un-American creation have been overwhelmingly defeated by their constituents. It is the predominant issue in four campaigns being waged for the senate at the present time in states other than Georgia.

Within the past few days has come the voice of Senator Trammell, of Florida, admitting his mistake in voting for the world court, and stating that developments in Europe have convinced him that the reservations stressed so much by Senator George, do not protect this country, and all of the press of the state carry the text of a resolution which he introduced at the next session of congress to take this country out of the world court. Nor is this feeling of insecurity concerning our nation's future as a member of Senator George's so-called world court confined to the democratic party. Among the republicans, Senator Gooding, of Idaho, who voted for the world court, is quoted by all the press as saying that he had changed his mind and would vote to take this country out of the world court at his first opportunity.

"Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, a distinguished republican, in a speech delivered on Saturday, attacked the world court sponsored by Senator George as a creature of the League of Nations, nothing more, nothing less. Those who maintain it is not either insincere or obtuse. He further declared that 'the American people are being led blindfolded into the League of Nations through the back door.' Senators Reed and Borah and the other patriots who fought this infamous surrender of American independence to a foreign court in the senate have carried their fight to the people and have toured the country informing the people of the dangers awaiting them in Senator George's world court.

Asks Direct Questions. "Does Senator George say that these distinguished Americans are so ignorant as to devote their thoughts and efforts to a dead issue? Or does he hold that the people of Georgia are so uninformed and such dullards that they do not recognize a great question of government, involving the very future of their country, when they see it? The people of Georgia are as keenly alive to this grave question as they have ever been. On the eighth day of September they will again register their opinion of senators who look to their state for their votes, to the nation for their salary and to Geneva for their orders.

"The verdict is already made. It will be returned and read on the eighth of September. It will declare in unmistakable measure that Georgians have not forgotten the advice of Washington, Jefferson, Marshall, Monroe and the other founders of this government to 'avoid entangling alliances with foreign powers.' (Signed) 'RICHARD B. RUSSELL.'"

Dave Wright in Coffee county. I am writing to commend your prompt and patriotic action and to say that I am placing every influence of the state in the hands of the sheriff of Coffee county to apprehend and convict these criminals who have so ruthlessly marred the record of the state.

"I am writing the solicitor general urging him to cooperate with you and so have charged the sheriff of Coffee county to exhaust every legitimate means to apprehend those who are guilty.

"I am sure that the sound thinking and patriotic people of our state will appreciate the efforts of the enforcement officers in this matter."

REED BEGINS PROBE OF MOB SLAYING

Douglas, Ga., August 31.—(AP)—Douglas, the county seat of Coffee county, put in a busy day yesterday. Sheriff Tanner will vouch for this statement.

A series of events led up to a lynching of a man in Douglas, the killing of a negro by his brother.

Judge Reed of the superior court was here today following the lynching of Dave Wright by an unknown band of masked men early in the morning. He has called the grand jury into session Monday morning, and will hear a report of the lynching from Sheriff Tanner and witnesses whom he intends to call. Sheriff Tanner stated today he bit several of his assailants during the scuffle for the jail keys and that he hoped to identify some of them by these marks.

Coroner Sullivan also will appear before the grand jury to give information he has secured following the lynching. Wright was in jail for the slaying of Mrs. Zephia Rollins here two weeks ago. The woman was a distant relative of Sheriff Tanner.

While the burial of the lynched victim was going on today, relatives were burying the remains of Ed Wooten Sapp, 19, who killed himself at his home at Broxton, nine miles from here, Sunday subsequent to a quarrel with his young wife. The youthful couple had been married only a short while and were leading a somewhat stormy domestic existence, according to a report made to the sheriff's office by a neighbor.

Sapp forbade his wife going to see her father and, holding a pistol to his head, threatened to end his life if she left him. She is reported to have told him she doubted he would shoot, whereupon he ended his life.

The third fatality resulted in Hugh Grofford, negro, being put in jail for the murder of his brother, Lonnie Grofford. The two negroes bought an automobile together, then later quarreled over who should drive it. In an altercation, Hugh is said to have shot Lonnie four times in the back. He was arrested after the killing and now awaits a hearing.

ATLANTA AIR MAIL STARTS SEPTEMBER 15

The first ship on the Alaska air mail line.

To Carry Passengers. The Jacksonville-Tampa service, which takes in Fort Myers, Fla., has been in operation for several months. According to Mr. Cheneva, an average of 51 pounds of mail a day is carried on this route. On a majority of the large eastern airlines, Mr. Cheneva said, the average poundage is 31 pounds.

Passenger service between Atlanta, Jacksonville and other points would be established along with the air mail service. Mr. Cheneva said, if it is not for the necessity of making provisions for landing fields on the route to insure the safety of such a service. These arrangements will be completed by October 1, in the opinion of Mr. Cheneva, and passenger service will begin.

The Florida Airways corporation equipment includes Ford Stout S-passenger monoplanes, Curtiss Larks, Travel Airs and the Stinson-Detroiter. By the first of the year, Mr. Cheneva said, the organization will have 14 planes in operation on the Atlanta-Florida airlines.

QUAKE ROCKS CITY, SNUFFS OUT LIVES

The temporary building which houses the Western Union pending its move into new offices was not so fortunate. Its walls were damaged and instruments ceased working.

ISLAND IS DESCRIBED AS "MASS OF RUINS"

Lisbon, Portugal, August 31.—(AP)—The island of Fayal is described in a message from the mayor as "a mass of ruins, especially the city of Horta."

The injured in the earthquake are estimated by him at 400.

The mayor's message came through after hours of silence and much anxiety over the fate of the Portuguese of the Azores island devastated by the quake. The aspect of Fayal island and the suffering of the victims, says the brief cablegram, were terrible to witness. The catastrophe defied all description.

No mention is made in the message of the number of killed.

A steamer column left for the Azores this morning on a merchant steamer commanded by the government. This was to be followed immediately by troops and engineers, corps and three warships. All through the afternoon and evening the Central telegraph offices in Lisbon were crowded with information of American friends in the Azores, but only the most meager information was received, indicating in itself the extent of the destruction.

4,000 HOMES DESTROYED IN HORTA BY QUAKE

Lisbon, August 31.—The governor of Horta has advised the Portuguese minister of the interior that 4,000 houses were destroyed in Horta by the earthquakes in the Azores islands Tuesday morning.

"Many families are without food," the communication said.

The spectacle is horrible. The damages will mount into millions of dollars.

Eight persons are believed to be dead and 200 have already received medical aid, the communication said.

The governor has asked that supplies of anti-tetanus serum, food and sleeping equipment be rushed to the island to alleviate the suffering.

The earthquake was felt in the entire island of Fayal, especially in Horta and vicinity. Accompanying the tremors was a tidal wave which swept into the city, the governor's communication said.

The population went into panic, fleeing their houses, shouting.

Silence reigned after the first shock, the communication said.

DEATH LIST OF 24 REPORTED BY WIRELESS

Paris, September 1.—Wireless reports to Lisbon from Horta say 24 persons were killed and 100 injured in Tuesday morning's earthquake in the Azores.

BARSDAVIS FACES TRIAL FOR MURDER

Macon, Ga., August 31.—(AP)—Nine witnesses testified for the state today in the trial of Bars Davis, charged in three indictments, seven counts, with complicity in the murder of Miss Hilda Smith and E. W. Wilson, on the evening of July 10. The state has 16 more witnesses.

In connection with the same crime, Ed Glover, negro, has been sentenced to die in the electric chair on September 9.

In outlining the case to the jury, which was completed shortly after the noonday recess, Solicitor General Charles H. Garrett stated that he expected to prove that Davis was present, sitting behind a stump a short distance from the scene, when Glover fired the shots that killed the couple.

Those who testified today were Jack Terrell, secretary of a car rental agency who rented the car to Wilson; Leroy Johnson, credit manager of the store where Miss Smith was employed; J. T. Shropshire, plumber; H. N. Vickery, employed at a lumber plant; Paul Rush, negro, employed at the same plant; Frank King, employed on the farm of G. L. Cobb, where Davis also had been employed; A. E. Odum, one of the first to discover the bodies of the couple; R. P. Connelly, embalmer, and William Brannan, deputy sheriff.

Vickery and Rush testified that they were coming toward Macon about 7:30 o'clock on the night of July 10, when they heard the two shots, and looking toward the scene they saw a light car less than a hundred feet away. Both witnesses stated that there were two men standing a little behind this car, but they could not recognize either man.

Deputy Sheriff Brannan said that he found the bushes behind the stump, near the light car, occupied by Miss Smith and Wilson, beaten down. He said he found footprints there, also.

The first demurrer presented by the defense today sought to nullify one charge under which Davis is indicted.

and when this was overruled, the defense asked in another demurrer that Solicitor C. H. Garrett be ordered to confine the state's case to one specific charge. The solicitor says that he wished to lay all of the state's case before the jury and let the jury return its verdict on any charge they see fit.

Attorneys for the defense have summoned six witnesses by whom they expect to prove a complete alibi. About 30 witnesses have been summoned by both sides.

Ed Glover, sentenced to the death chair on September 9, will be one of the state's principal witnesses. He claims that Davis told him to shoot the couple, promising him $25 and a gallon of whisky.

Tallahassee, Fla., August 31.—(AP)—Nearly 200 acres of state land were sold today by trustees of the internal improvement fund, according to an announcement. The land, located in Broward and Sarasota counties, brought about $35,000.

The Charm of a Beautiful Home —CREATED BY STERLING SILVER

For hundreds of years Sterling Silver has held a recognized place in beautiful homes... creating an atmosphere of elegance and charm.

Our great-grandmothers prized their Sterling Silver very highly. It was entirely handmade in those days... a long, tedious process making its price almost prohibitive except to very wealthy families.

Today, Sterling Silver is so reasonable in price that it is within the reach of every average American family. Many families include Sterling Silver in their monthly budget.

You can obtain a complete dinner service with flatware to match... purchasing a few pieces at a time... and add to your home the elegance and charm of beautiful Sterling Silver.

PETRELS FIRST 1926 PRACTICE SLATED FOR TODAY

Oglethorpe Coach Scheduled To Arrive For Initial Work

Many Players Are On Hand for Opening of S. I. A. A. Gridiron Season at Peachtree Road School—Coach Facing Hard Task of Building Up New Team.

This afternoon a number of athletically inclined young men will assemble out at Oglethorpe, well-known Peachtree road institution, for the first football practice of the season, and Coach Harry Robertson will set out on his quest for another S. I. A. A. title, to aid to the two trophies of a like manner which rest in the Petrel trophy room.

Robertson left New York last week, headed for Atlanta in his automobile, and should arrive today, in time to personally start the Petrel squad off on its 1926 campaign. The Petrels are starting their training on Wednesday along with the rest of the S. I. A. A. teams.

"Natty" Campbell, captain-elect of the Petrel eleven, is anxious to see how it feels to be a captain, and has been on hand for several days, making preparations for the season. Homer Chestnut, Robertson's assistant and coach of the freshman squad, has also been among those present for the last few days, assisting Natty.

Graduation last June left many wide gaps in the Petrel ranks and Coach Robertson will have a tough time in filling the aforesaid vacancies. This year he will have no large amount of experienced veterans, but still, he has plenty of material, which although green is very game.

This is the third year that Robertson has served as coach at Oglethorpe, and also marks the last year of his contract, but it is generally believed that his contract will be renewed.

Although prospects for this year are not so good, supporters of the team admit that they are no worse than those of the 1924 season, when Robertson took the team over and taught it enough football in two months to defeat every S. I. A. A. team on its schedule.

And for that reason, the air around the campus is charged with optimism, and everyone is looking forward to a successful season for Oglethorpe.

22ND INFANTRY GRID TRAINING STARTS TODAY

Football practice will begin for the 22nd infantry at Fort McPherson today. Coach Alex Cunningham, former mentor of the University of Georgia, will have charge of football for the coming season. Prospects are bright for a team that will measure up to and possibly exceed anything that the Soldiers have thrown together in quite a number of years.

Already 15 games have been scheduled for the season, some of them being with Paris Island marines, eighth infantry, sixth cavalry, North Georgia Aggies and Camp Benning. Most of these games will be played on Friday and Sunday, with some games sprinkled in during the week. Quite a few former college and prep stars are among the officers and enlisted men, and Captain Cunningham hopes to give the fans of Atlanta good football.

JACK WALLOPS SIX PARTNERS IN TRAINING

Atlantic City, N. J., August 31.—(AP)—Throwing off all restraint Jack Dempsey walloped six sparring partners all over the ring today, revealing a flash of fighting fury that he has kept under cover since establishing his training camp here a week ago.

The champion looked like the Dempsey of old in his 10-round workout. One of his short left hooks, crashing against Johnny Saxton's chin, knocked the Bridgeport, Conn., welterweight unconscious. Saxton was lifted off his feet and landed on his head with a thud.

Dempsey picked up the unconscious boxer, lifted him over the ropes and other sparring mates carried him to the dressing room. Without waiting for Saxton to regain consciousness, Dempsey called Alex Hart into the ring to finish the round.

Then Jack became alarmed, fearing that Saxton might have been seriously injured. He ordered camp attendants to the dressing room. After a few minutes of first aid, however, Saxton was able to come out and make a bow before the 1,500 spectators. Dempsey threw his arms around Saxton, expressing his sorrow.

The champion boxed six rounds, in addition to working around on light and heavy bags, a round of shadow boxing and calisthenics. Against Charley Anderson and Bill Tate, negro heavyweights, Dempsey concentrated his attack to the body, driving both fists like piston rods.

Jack Grace, a famous old-time lightweight of 20 years ago, said Dempsey had not gone back an inch since the Firpo fight and was in marvelous condition. He was particularly attracted to Dempsey's ability to punch with his left hand from almost any position, and his slittiness in footwork.

Dempsey will lay off tomorrow, resuming training Thursday afternoon.

Vernon, Calif., August 31.—(AP)—Telegraphic acceptance by Pinkie Mitchell, of Milwaukee, Wis., junior welterweight champion, of a title bout here September 22, with Mushy Cullahan, of Los Angeles, has been announced by Hyden Wadhams, matchmaker. The bout will be 10 rounds to a decision.

HAWK-EYE-ING SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS.

A Tale of Courage.

Many times when we sing the praises of athletic prowess displayed by nationally and internationally known sporting stars we forget to "search for diamonds in our own back yard."

While conversing with members of the Atlanta Athletic club who accompanied the A. A. C. swimming team to Birmingham for the Southern A. A. U. meet last week-end, we heard a story of sheer nerve seldom surpassed in the annals of sport.

The story concerns Virginia Ashe, the lone woman swimmer of the A. A. C. team, who competed singlehanded against teams of women from other southern cities in the Birmingham meet and who came within a few points of winning the TEAM cup for women.

Her feat of winning the 220-yard and 100-yard dashes and placing in the 50-yard event, is in itself enough to place her name in bold letters upon the scroll of sports, but the conditions surrounding her performance mark it as one of the great exhibitions of courage of all time.

To begin with, Miss Ashe drew an inside lane in the 50-yard event and as a result was forced to take a third place. Unintentional interference on the part of her opponents in the early stages of the race served to throw her off her stroke and she lost a first place which had been conceded to her by all the dopesters in advance.

Then she swam the 220-yard dash, the most grueling race on the card, and won by many yards from a field of stars which included such stellar women swimmers as the Elberfeld sisters and Staff sisters. Due to a mistake in timing she was not accurately clocked in this event, which was particularly disappointing, in view of the fact that Miss Ashe had been swimming the 220 near the world mark, in practice, and put her best into the swim to establish an official mark.

These bad breaks would have discouraged many a courageous swimmer, but they only served to instill Virginia Ashe with the will to win her other event. At the end of the 220-yard event she was taken with a severe attack of cramps and during the fifteen minutes between the 220 and the 100-yard swims she was under the care of a masseur.

When starting time came for the 100-yard dash Miss Ashe was advised by her coach to scratch from the event, but though she had to be supported as she walked to the starting board, she refused to quit.

Members of the team were placed on the 25, 50 and 75-yard lines to act as life-savers if Miss Ashe should collapse during the race and officials fully expected to see the plucky Atlanta girl succumb before the end of the race.

She reached the 75-yard line out in front but at that point her head was seen to drop and an expression of intense suffering overspread her face. Officials and spectators looked for her to quit but they failed to reckon the indomitable will and fighting heart which are the rare possessions of this girl.

At the 75-yard line Virginia Ashe virtually fainted, the pain and nervous strain were too much for her conscious mind but the fighting spirit which has made her one of the south's greatest swimmers would not be beaten. Her arms continued to move, mechanically, it is true, but efficiently enough to bring her to the tape ahead of the field.

It is the story of one woman matched against teams of three and four swimmers and Miss Ashe would in all probability have won the TEAM cup if interference had not spoiled her chance to win the 50-yard event.

Such is the inside history of the victory of Virginia Ashe in the two main swimming events at Birmingham. The wires carried the facts concerning her triumphs but the real story of her feat, which we have tried to retell, should be emblazoned on the pages of sporting records for the eyes of the world to see.

DAVE YATES VISITS ATLANTA

NOTED AQUATIC STAR TO OFFICIATE IN CARNIVAL TO WITNESS SWIMMING MEET

Dave Yates is back in town for a visit. This statement means much to sports fans of the Gate City of the South, for it is an established fact that where Dave Yates goes there is always "something doing" in the realm of athletics.

The assistant national director of first aid and life saving for the American Red Cross is in Atlanta to visit old friends here and to attend The Constitution's swimming meet at Piedmont park on Saturday and Monday, September 4 and 6. And The Constitution takes pleasure in the announcement that Dave will act as one of the officials in the gigantic city championship meet.

Acting as an athletic official is the "best thing Dave does." It was Dave Yates who revolutionized basketball in the south when he came into this part of the country to act as referee in the inter-collegiate basketball tournaments.

His athletic career has been long and enviable. He played baseball with the Newark club of the International league, for two years and then went with the New York Yankees for one season as a pitcher before he decided to retire from professional baseball.

Dave has just come from Asheville, where he officiated as starter in the statewide swimming meet conducted by Eleanor Colman, former Olympic breast stroke champion and internationally known aquatic star.

In addition to attending The Constitution's aquatic meet, Dave will discuss with athletic club officials a plan for organizing a life-saving and first aid class here this winter.

His return to Atlanta, if only for a short time, is hailed with joy by his host of friends here. Dave was southern director of life-saving and first aid for the American Red Cross with headquarters in Atlanta until about two years ago, when he went to Washington and was given the post of assistant national director.

Cook was included in a list of four substitutes awaiting the possible withdrawal of an entry from the list of 152 golfers. Cook will start out in the tourney with Parker Whittemore as his opponent on the morning of September 13. The message gave his starting time as 10:35 o'clock.

The news of Cook's chance in the tournament was received in Atlanta with much joy. Many friends had hoped that the Georgia golf star would get a place in the tourney, but with the big list of original entries awaiting the opening of the tournament all hopes of Gene's entering were abandoned.

With Cook entered in the tourney Atlanta has three formidable contestants in the running for the title now held by Bobby Jones. Watts Gunn and Bobby are rated among the first ten in the entry list with the champion at the top.

Gene has been looking forward to getting a place in the big tournament and has been doing some hard practice so as to be in tip top shape when the time came for him to join his two running mates.

W. F. JENKINS TRAINING FOR FAIR RACING

W. F. Jenkins, popular sportsman of Opelika, Ala., has recovered from the injuries he suffered in the run-away during the Fourth of July races at Lakewood park and will be back in the sulky for the racing program at the Southeastern fair, October 2 to 9. It was announced Tuesday by Oscar Mills, secretary-manager of the fair association.

Mr. Jenkins has entered two of his horses in the $1,000 stake races which will be features of the fair speed program and is working them out daily over the Lakewood track in preparation for the events.

Thousands of persons who saw the horse races on July 3, recall the game fight that Belle Dare, Mr. Jenkins' favorite mare, put up in the 2:10 trot and, losing it, jerked her driver clear out of the sulky in an effort to get back to the track when the bell rang for the next race, while he was driving her toward the stable.

Mr. Jenkins remained in the hospital for more than a month suffering from concussion of the brain and severely strained ligaments in his neck. He returned to the racing stables Monday and Tuesday and made known his intention of getting back on the track at the first opportunity.

No Upsets in Battles For U. S. Doubles Title

Brookline, Mass., August 31.—(AP)—Play in the national doubles tennis tournament moved into the third round at the Longwood Cricket club here today without upsets. Three seeded teams, however, were forced into extra sets to win their matches.

The present champions, R. N. Williams, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., and Vincent Richards, of New York, reached the third round easily by defeating A. Graven, of Chicago, and Henry R. Gould, of Boston, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3. At no time during the match were the titleholders in danger of losing.

The French Davis cup team of Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon was extended to four sets before eliminating the Providence combination of Mild Jones and W. W. Johnston. The former Harvard and Yale captains raced through the third set 6-1. The French team then strengthened and took the next three, 6-2, 6-1, 7-5.

French Have Easy Win. The other French Davis cup team members, Jean Borotra and Rene Lacoste, found little opposition in the Texas pair of John Barr and Wilmer Allison. The 1925 English champions won in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1, 7-5.

The other seeded team to win in straight sets was that of William M. Johnston and Edward G. Chandler, of San Francisco. They crushed Fritz Mergler, of Boston, and Neil Sullivan, of Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2.

Shropshire Medalist In Junior Tournament

Tommy Shropshire, youthful golf star from Brookhaven, was low medalist in the Atlanta junior golf tournament, which started Tuesday morning at Druid Hills. Shropshire and Billy Youngblood, of Ansley Park Golf club, tied in the morning play, but in the resultant play-off Shropshire came out on top with a score of 80.

The entry list in this year's tournament is larger than ever before, with a total of 64 young Atlanta stars entered. The tournament is open only to boys of 16 or under.

The day's play was featured by the play of Charles Shropshire, 10-year-old son of the youngest entry in the full 18-hole flight. Young Shropshire's score for 18 holes Tuesday was 108, and he will be given a medal for special performance.

Harry Stephens, Druid Hills professional, is running the tournament, and he stated Tuesday night that he wished to publicly thank members of the Druid Hills club for the interest they had taken in the tourney and the help that they had given him.

Gene Cook Is Entered In National Amateur

Gene Cook, one of Atlanta's best golfers and present holder of the Georgia state title, will have a chance at the national amateur golf crown, according to a telegram received in Atlanta Tuesday from Herbert Ramsey, secretary of the United States Golf association, stating that Harrison Johnston had withdrawn from the tournament, thus making an opening for Cook.

Cook was included in a list of four substitutes awaiting the possible withdrawal of an entry from the list of 152 golfers. Cook will start out in the tourney with Parker Whittemore as his opponent on the morning of September 13. The message gave his starting time as 10:35 o'clock.

Ten-Year-Old Girl Wins Horseshoe Title

Hibbing, Minn., August 31.—(AP)—A ten-year-old girl is Minnesota's women's amateur horseshoe pitching champion today. Prene Pagliarini, of Hibbing, yesterday defeated Mrs. Otto Witt in the first game of a three-game championship match, 50 to 37, and then caused her to forfeit the second when she was down, 15 to 3.

Jack Simpson Loses To Youthful Star; Other Aces Survive

Courts Defeats Former Net Champion in Straight Sets. Grant, Owens, Graves and Others Remain in Running for Georgia Championship.

Marked by good play in all matches and one surprising upset, the Georgia state tennis tournament being held at East Lake today swings into the final round with the semi-finals scheduled for tomorrow. With one exception all seeded players survived Tuesday's round of play.

Malon Courts, young Atlanta star, played one of the most brilliant games seen in Atlanta this summer when he defeated Jack Simpson, 1925 city champion, in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2. Bryan Grant, another young star, scored a decisive victory over Kels Boland, recently crowned tri-state champion at Rome, Grant winning, 6-0, 6-4.

Graves Beat Couper. John Temple Graves II, of Washington, D. C., was victorious in both of his matches, having little trouble in disposing of Maxwell Couper, 6-0, 6-0, and Harry Gault, 6-2, 6-1. The victory of Courts over Simpson was the biggest upset of the tournament and Courts' game gave indications that he would cause a great deal of trouble to any one eliminating him from the tourney. He played an all-around, good game, and his stroking was especially good. He succeeded in defeating Simpson, however, by breaking up the older player's net game, which is his strong point, and which gave Simpson his victory over Jack Mooney last summer in the city tournament.

Bryan Grant also rose to great heights in defeating Kels Boland, a much older and experienced player. Grant surprised the spectators by winning the first set, 6-0. The biggest thrill, however, was furnished when, with the score in games 4-1 in Boland's favor, and the score of the sixth game of the set 40-40, also in Boland's favor, Grant came from behind, and playing whirlwind tennis took the set, 6-4.

Ladies Play Today. Play in the ladies singles will start this morning at 10 o'clock. Anyone wishing to enter who has not yet done so may enter by reporting at East Lake this morning. An entry fee of one dollar will be charged, and this fee must be paid before play.

The mixed doubles will start Thursday morning if there are enough entries to justify the holding of the event.

DANGER.

With a snort of mingled rage and pain, the animal had streaked blindly in a half circle, suddenly disappearing, less than a hundred yards away, into the cover of high grass.

Richenda had seen her own beast give a spasmodic leap as her bullet reached him, but now the deserted clearing brought home to her with a sense of disappointment the fact that she had not accomplished a kill.

"What on earth possessed you to do that?" Fairway's eyes were like cold steel and his lips were drawn tight.

Her little square chin went high at his tone. "Why shouldn't I try my hand?" she answered lightly. "Is it necessary to ask your permission for everything I do?"

"You little fool. Didn't you know?"

"Know what?"

"That a wounded buffalo is the most dangerous thing in Africa!" There was amazed scorn in his voice.

"For heaven's sake, run, woman!"

"As it happens, I didn't," she replied, "but, anyway, it's not my business now. He's gone."

"Gone! That is evident enough," he blazed, "but the point I want to get at is—just where has he gone?" The sneer in his angry tone infuriated the girl.

"How should I know?" she flashed back. "I didn't watch him!"

Richenda, still an infant in the lore of the hunter, had never heard that, of all the animals on the African wilds, the buffalo is the one of whom its would-be slayer must be most aware. Pain brings a murderous rage to the beast—fierce which is mixed with devilish cunning and a resolve to entrap the one who has dealt out this sudden agony.

So it frequently happens that a wounded buffalo will deliberately double back upon its tracks, making a detour till it comes to the path along which, some strange sense tells it, the hunter must approach. There it will sink into ambush, awaiting the arrival of its enemy. Then will come the lightning rush and quick of shot must be he who would escape the sweeping horns above those murder-glancing eyes, the trample of huge, maddened hoofs across his prostrate body! And Fairways, who had shot buffalo in Africa five years before, knew all these things.

Mixed with the annoying realization that Richenda's hurried shot from so close behind him had spoiled his own aim—and Fairways, proud of his skill with the gun, hated to let an animal get away—came also the sudden knowledge that, somewhere in the silence around him, two pairs of murderous eyes might be watching the opportune moment for that sudden rush. Suppose they both came at once! What could he do? And this girl beside him—helpless! Was ever mortal man in such a position before?

"How should I know?" her light answer had come. "I didn't watch him. Anyway, he's gone!"

He wanted to shake her then for the laugh in her tone. His very love of her seemed for a moment lost in the great responsibility which faced him.

"Let's go back to camp," she was saying now. "It's time enough and—"

"For pity's sake, be quiet!" Never had she heard quite that tone from him before, and then the biting words again: "You little fool!"

Richenda drew her lips into a tight line and fell into a silent stride by his side as they turned to retrace their steps. She stole a glance at the black-browed face so near her. His eyes peered into every bush as they approached it. The two boys under his command were scanning the path with frightened glances to front and rear.

Richenda began to feel a little awed. But, after all, the things had run away! It wasn't as if they had shown any signs of charging! And everything was quiet. Tiptoeing along like this, it seemed rather silly! She didn't believe that—

It was then that the thing happened. Came, from some hidden ambush a score of yards away, with the speed of a railway train, a snorting bulk of black, raging hate. Then two simultaneous yells as the Kikuyu boys tore to cover.

"Back! Back! Run!" Fairways' voice was hoarse as his gun swung up to his shoulder.

She couldn't run! Her feet seemed glued to the ground with the sudden terror of it. The thing was almost upon them now. Two quick reports and it swung aside, blind from the rush of blood that poured across its hate-maddened eyes. Then, in a flash, round again.

"For heaven's sake, run, woman!" The master tone brought back her scattered senses, brought life to her limbs again. She sped wildly away from the battle, urged by sheer animal fear.

Fairways, too, in one bound had cleared from the pathway of the huge fury, which, yet again, was almost upon them. Without a second's pause his gun rang out, and the blue-gray body, slashed with its pouring streams of red, sagged suddenly into inertness, fell with convulsive shudders to the blood-pooled earth, barely two yards from the man who stood tense, breathless, and tight-lipped, watching its dying tremors. One more merciful shot he gave it, then all was still.

Richenda had moved over to his side. There was awe in her heart at the realization that this man, level-headed and steady-handed, had saved not only his own life but hers as well. The impulse to tender him the praise and apologies he had merited came suddenly to her. For one instant she marveled at that strength of brain which matched his strength of body.

"O—," she began, "O, I—"

But he caught her by the shoulder, forced her into movement again.

"Get on," he said shortly, "maybe your other friend is waiting for us in the next clump of bushes!"

But of her other friend no sign could be seen as they traversed the miles towards their temporary home. Richenda, wearied by the strain and undue exertion, could scarcely drag her feet over the last part of the journey. She had no wish to talk and, after all, this man—in spite of his skill as a hunter—was but a boor, she told herself. Had he not forced her, against her will, to accompany him on this expedition which had proved so perilous.

When they reached the camp she almost stumbled into her tent.

"I don't want anything to eat," she told the boy.

"Jerome shall bring your meal to you," Fairways answered.

Next morning, in spite of her fatigue, Richenda awoke betimes, dressed herself, and came out into the early morning sunshine. Fairways found her already astir.

"I'm complying with your wishes and leaving you alone in the camp today," he told her, adding quickly: "with Jerome and Macheria, that is."

She eyed him silently.

"I'm taking the toto with me to track down that other wounded brute."

"But is that really necessary?"

On account of recent bereavements in the bride's family, the wedding was a quiet affair, being witnessed by the immediate families of the bride and groom, and a few close friends.

Slams Salaams and By Louise Dooly

"AND what," the lady asked of the male candidate for the United States senate, "what are you going to do for the women when you are elected?"

"I am going to do whatever the ladies ask me," was the answer. By simple statement the candidate proved that all the rash political promises are not made by women governors in Texas.

I NEED not tell you that when the senatorial prospect so included all the ladies of his constituency in his gallant assurance, he bowed from the waist.

Now, the bow in itself was very pretty done, and there are still women who seek deference—and earn it.

Moreover, the bow in itself need imply no lack of sincerity on the part of any gentleman anywhere. But there was just one word which would have opened the eyes of the most trusting of women, even could they have swallowed the whole sweeping gallantry. Indeed, it was one word which made his answer a gallantry, instead of a promise.

If the candidate for the senate had said "I am going to do whatever the women ask me," his words might have carried some conviction.

Even a politician does not have to be a purist as to language to distinguish almost instinctively the logical occasion for the use of the word woman, and the different occasion for the use of the word lady. He need only be sincere.

A woman in public life can just as consistently be a lady as a man in politics can be a gentleman.

But we speak, of the gentleman for the office, but of the man for the office.

And the woman for the office or in it is the correct description, and though she be such a lady that she wears gloves in the summer time and does not use her lipstick in public.

Woman is really the larger term and highly honorable. No lady feels benighted to answer to it, and even gallantry in politics need not be skittish about it. As compared with lady, its relative robustness will not offend, and in its own circumstances, woman is the greater tribute.

EVERYBODY IS UNANIMOUS.

THE most obvious statement in the newspaper reports of the recent advance millinery showing in New York for the trade was this: "The so-called 'Occasion hat'—a different chapeau for every costume—received the unanimous approval of the milliners assembled."

Description of the reception Husband and Father will give this same style note when the bills come in about November will not appear in the newspapers, but it will be just as unanimous.

PURE SCIENCE.

SCIENCE is growing every day less awesome to us hoi polloi the more we know about it.

The British Association for the Advancement of Science has been meeting in Oxford the past week. Simultaneously the Institute of Politics met at Williamstown, Mass.

Concerning both, the newspapers have been handing out to the public what the newspapers think the public wants from these conferences, and really the newspapers, some of them, are quite flattering to their readers. So there is no reason why anybody keeps up with these reports should not begin to feel that he is developing "the scientific attitude."

As far as I can see, the most important potentiality in science as developed in the British society's conference—the most important as measured by the amount of publicity it got—was the Prince of Wales' prophecy that sooner or later science will find some method to keep the masculine collar from developing saw-teeth; some method short of discarding a collar which has reached this stage of maturity in favor of a new one.

The scientists at Williamstown appear to have been playing menagerie all year, except in their leisure time. Thus they relate so much that is absorbingly interesting about love-making among bugs and turtles, showing the marvelous similarity of their necking methods with those of the human species, that one is almost tempted to buy, say, a bowl of goldfish, and get up some yellow journal feature—stories on private lives, if any, such research and its narration contributing thus notably to what one would oneself term popular science.

MONKEYS AND APPENDICES.

MUCH as reports from Oxford and Williamstown are obliged to enhance, as I have suggested above, the general respect for pure science, I must admit that my faith in the absolutism of scientific authority, as enunciated about itself, has been shaken a bit by the newest gruppings as to tonsils.

Nowadays science is telling us that tonsils have a use; that, as near as I can get it through instinct, they are a sort of lethal chamber for disease bugs, putting the bugs out of their misery before they can contribute to ours. Hence, some people, even after they have allowed a doctor to look at their tonsils, are allowed to keep them, provided they are the right size, in the right place, and the doctor is overruled with business any day.

And yet it seems only the other day that we of the lay world were being positively assured—as positively as that the appendix is something we have no further use for, now that reckless deforestation has done away with so many trees, were assured that tonsils, too, were a mere hang-over from our pre-historic days. They were relics of fins, or the things we breathed through when we were fish.

(This was either before or after we got to be monkeys, I am not sure which.)

Now, if science, once so sweeping in its dictum as to tonsils, and so amused in its pity for us skeptics as to tonsils being either drones or fins, if science might possibly have made a mistake in this matter of fish versus flesh, may it not some day even have to revise its monkey theory, however convincingly some of us look and act?

Prominent Cedartown Cotton Mill Operator Dies in Los Angeles

New York, August 31.—(AP)—The cotton market was steady today on reduced crop estimates and less favorable weather reports. December contracts which had sold off to 17.47 on the decline early yesterday, advanced to 17.55 in today's late trading and closed at 17.55. The general market closing steady at net advances of 23 to 27 points. Cotton was steady in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables, reiterated reports of declining Egyptian crop prospects, and prospects for showers in some parts of the south. Buying was stimulated to some extent by publication of a private report placing the condition of the crop at 38.6 and the indicated yield at 14,380,000 bales, compared with the government's mid-August indication of 15,248,000.

Prices Are Firm.

The market met a good deal of realization, as prices advanced on the 18-cent level, was absorbed on reactions of 8 or 9 points during the day. Prices firmed up again later on detailed weather reports showing a decline in Alabama and the prospect for further showers in that section. A little trade buying as well as covering was reported on the late afternoon, and there appeared to be some rebuying by traders who had taken profits on long cotton toward the end of last week.

October sold up to 17.50 and January to 18.00 in late trading, net advances of 38 to 25 points on the crop and the late afternoon, and there appeared to be some rebuying by traders who had taken profits on long cotton toward the end of last week.

Three private end-August crop reports gave figures on the indicated yield ranging from 14,380,000 to 14,550,000 bales and averaging about 14,540,000. These figures were regarded as confirming recent reports of deteriorating crop prospects, and probably brought in some covering in anticipation of a low crop figure from the government next Wednesday.

Private cable advice from Alexandria said the condition of cotton plants was unsatisfactory and the outlook for the crop of saffordis has been damaged 20 per cent.

Exports today, 28,856, making 203,404 so far this season. Port receipts, 59,140. U. S. port receipts, 609,113.

New York, August 31.—(AP)—Cotton spot steady; middling 19.05.

TREND REACTIONARY
ON NEW ORLEANS MART.

New Orleans, La., August 31.—(AP)—The cotton market was at times quite active today and at other times comparatively quiet. While the opening showed indications of a reactionary trend the market firmed up owing to unfavorable accounts of the progress of the crop and recent damage.

Two very bullish crop estimates also had a stimulative influence and prices soon gained 18 to 20 points from the initial lows. The close showed gains of 20 to 23 points. Prices eased off a few points in the final trading and the close showed gains for the day of 15 to 21 points.

Crop Reports.

The three private crop reports gave condition averages ranging from 38.6 to 42.1 and indicating a yield from 14,380,000 to 14,550,000 bales.

PRICE MOVEMENT ON CURB CONFUSED

New York, August 31.—(AP)—A further broadening of activity took place in today's curb market but the price movement was still confused. Erie Steam Shovel shares were admitted to trading, selling between 7 1/2 and 25 1/2 as against the offering price of 25 for a block of 280,000 shares which was over-subscribed before the market opened.

An unexpected cut in Coastal Crude prices by the Humble Oil company and publication of private estimates of another increase in Crude production last week dampened speculative enthusiasm for the oil group, although strong buying support was apparent for many issues throughout the session. Standard Oil of Kentucky advanced 1 1/2 points and most of the active issues in that group improved nationally. Heavy trading in the South American producers featured the independent oil group.

New peak prices for the year or larger were recorded again by a number of industrial shares including American Hardware, Estey Wette A. General Electric company of Germany, Glen Alder Coal, and McCall corporation. Amusement shares were mixed, Bala-tan-Katz certificates breaking 6 points to a new 1926 low at 63 1/2 while Facet Theater A and Warner Pictures B each advanced about a point. General Motors (new stock) was again traded on a large scale, closing 1 1/2 higher at 142 after having sold down to 139 3/4. Other motors showed little change.

CARSWELL TO SPEAK AT WAYCROSS MONDAY

Waycross, Ga., August 31.—George H. Carswell, candidate for governor of Georgia, will speak at the Waycross on Monday, Labor day, it is announced by the local Carswell club. Mr. Carswell was scheduled to speak in Waycross on Wednesday, August 25, but was prevented from filling the engagement when he was the victim of an automobile accident near McRae. On request from supporters here he named the new date and will be given a holiday hearing here Monday.

Mrs. Carswell is a brother of Mrs. George R. Youmans, of this city, and has many friends in the Waycross territory.

Criticism of vast expenditures for good roads over the past few years and the "misuse" of money for the age of decent roads we have to show for it," as an example of waste and extravagance which Georgians will repudiate when they vote next November.

Mr. Carswell, who is running against John Holder, formed the chief burden of the candidate's address at the noon hour.

His own trying my own fight to follow Georgians men and women voters," he said, "confident as I stand before you that Georgians are 'fed up' with the present political conditions and are going to turn out in a safe road, at least. Not a decade ago this state stood unchallenged when it claimed to be the poorest in the South. Where are we and whither are we drifting.

His Holders have.

"John Holder has 'about-faced' on his word. Two years ago he boasted of his advocacy of the 'good roads' and today we find him floundering with his divided opinions and facing defeat at the hands of voters because of his failure to carry out his promises."

The Day in Finance By R. L. BARNUM

New York, August 31.—An increase of six per cent in gross and 23 per cent in net operating income for July over last year 10 indicated for the railroads as a whole from the returns of the first 78 large carriers at hand for the month. This would mean a new high record for July earnings. It would also mean the annual rate of six per cent. The very favorable July earnings statements now coming to hand and the outlook for continued large earnings for the remainder of 1926 railroad stocks made further headway in assuming leadership of the stock market. The feeling of some well-informed high for the year, some a new high for all time. The average of 25 rails is now at a new 10 1/2 high.

Fourteen new bus companies were incorporated throughout the country during August. It does not appear from the monthly earnings statements of the railroads, however, that growing automobile, bus and motor truck competition is hurting the railroads. Today's earnings of the railroads in Humble Oil which comes from Texas where the largest weekly gains have been reported in production of oil. The feeling of some well-informed high for the year, some a new high for all time. The average of 25 rails is now at a new 10 1/2 high.

Only a few months ago some banks were advising insurance companies, other financial institutions holding large investments and individual investors that easy money was ahead of the coming year. The feeling of some well-informed high for the year, some a new high for all time. The average of 25 rails is now at a new 10 1/2 high.

HARDMAN ATTACKS HOLDER'S RECORD

Clarksville, Ga., August 31.—(Special).—Declaring that Georgia needs a business administration and the application of sound principles in returning to its position as a leader in the southern states, Dr. L. G. Hardman carried his candidacy for governor to citizens of this section today in a speech that is freely admitted "meant many votes for him."

Criticism of vast expenditures for good roads over the past few years and the "misuse" of money for the age of decent roads we have to show for it," as an example of waste and extravagance which Georgians will repudiate when they vote next November.

Mr. Carswell, who is running against John Holder, formed the chief burden of the candidate's address at the noon hour.

Rail Earnings Occupy Attention of Speculative Wall Street—New High Record Shown for July—Easier Call Money Expected.

ONE MAN KILLED, BROTHER INJURED AS CAR OVERTURNS

Monroe, Ga., August 31.—(Special).—Emory Partain, 20, of Campton, Ga., is dead and his brother, Richard Partain, 20, is in the Monroe hospital with his head injured. The fatal accident occurred three miles north of Monroe on the Monroe-Winder road at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

While word came from the hospital that the younger brother was being detained but not in a critical condition, the older brother lay in a local undertaking establishment awaiting removal to the home of his parents. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Partain, near Campton, six miles north of Monroe, The accident occurred, according to witnesses, when the two-seated Dodge car, in which the brothers were driving, became unmanageable for some reason and turned over twice, flinging both occupants under the machine and landing upright in the road on its side. The car was shattered.

W. J. McKinney, of Atlanta, and passengers from Monroe found the two boys beneath the wreckage. They were badly injured and Richard Partain, the latter was rushed to Monroe by Mr. McKinney, who sent an ambulance for the body of Emory.

Dr. Hardman referred briefly to the fact that he had no "entangling political alliances," was not dependent upon a machine, and hoped that his own outspoken and straightforward campaign before the people of this state would be rewarded by an overwhelming vote.

The speaker bitterly assailed Holder's public record and questioned his sincerity in wanting to be governor in view of his radical changes in good road program and John Holder's own feeling his mistake in not taking the "issue" directly to the people.

Dr. Hardman said, "He has found it necessary to go back to his home community in a last stand as election nears to make a representative showing with 'home-folks.' I ask you to see who carries Jackson county's vote what Holder's 'home-folks' will do with his wishy-washy tactics and 'on again off again' methods."

Sees Holder's Defeat.

"Whispering John" Holder has been a failure for the past two years, and as surely as Georgians know right from wrong," Dr. Hardman declared, "he has proved a 'snake' and a servative sound administration of affairs of the state, in event he is elected, and told Clarksville voters that good roads and education for the people are the two things which would have thorough business methods would have his whole attention as governor.

Dr. Hardman is well known in this section of the state and it has been generally contended for some time that he will poll a tremendously big vote throughout this territory.

Cornelia, Ga., August 31.—(Special).—Making his last speech of the month here this afternoon, Dr. L. G. Hardman, candidate for governor, stated emphatically that no man or party could expect to win the governorship by giving the lie on September 5 and pronounce the patient cured.

"In the closing days of this campaign, I wish to emphasize the paramount importance to the taxpayers of this commonwealth in holding down taxes and the wise expenditure of the state's money in a reasonable years seen too much waste in the state highway department and this has cost Georgia hundreds of thousands of dollars. Closer attention should be given to upkeep and repairs and save the taxpayers every dollar possible.

"The charge has been hurled at me that the laboring vote does not endorse my candidacy. According to the spokesman of the labor union in Atlanta no individual candidate has ever had any labor trouble in the 30 years of operation. That in itself is indicative of the fact that labor is being well taken care of. But aside from that it is a foregone conclusion that with a business administration watching the outgo of every dollar of the state's money it will have a tendency to lower taxes and give higher wages.

SENATE TO STAND PAT ON ITS VOTE

Paul Smith's, N. Y., August 31.—

(AP)—No likelihood of the senate reversing itself on the question of American entrance to the permanent court of international justice is seen by President Coolidge, who considers that question settled by the senate.

While it was said today at the summer white house that Mr. Coolidge did not know of the attitude of Senators Gooding, republican, Idaho, and Trammell, democrat, Florida, who voted for American adherence to the court, and now have changed their views, it was remarked by officials that perhaps it would be just as well to wait until after the fall elections and see what the final attitude of those in public office may be on the matter.

The president, it was emphasized, is expecting "no change."

While it was said Mr. Coolidge had not read the views of Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, Ohio, former secretary of war, urging a revision or cancellation of the debts, it was made clear that the president knew of no

SENATE TO STAND PAT ON ITS VOTE

Paul Smith's, N. Y., August 31.—(AP)—No likelihood of the senate reversing itself on the question of American entrance to the permanent court of international justice is seen by President Coolidge, who considers that question settled by the senate.

While it was said today at the summer white house that Mr. Coolidge did not know of the attitude of Senators Gooding, Republican, Idaho, and Trammell, Democrat, Florida, who voted for American entrance to the court, and now have changed their views, it was remarked by officials that perhaps it would be just as well to wait until after the final elections and see what the final attitude of those in public office may be on the matter.

The president, it was emphasized, is expecting "no change."

While it was said Mr. Coolidge had not read the views of Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, Ohio, former secretary of war, urging a revision or cancellation of the debts, it was made clear that the president knew of no

Harry K. Thaw Scores 'Traitor' In Book of Life

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune)
New York, August 31.—Harry K. Thaw, white haired now and known to most of his fellow habitués of the night clubs only as an elderly man with a constant bodyguard, who distributes large tips for the pleasure of being recognized publicly, has written and published the story of his life.

In an autobiography, entitled "The Traitor," published at an expense to himself he has estimated at $25,000 for a first edition of 50,000 volumes, he turns back 20 years to re-tell the story of his life with Evelyn Nesbit and his killing of Stanford White.

"The Traitor" of Thaw's book is not named by him, but his identity is clearly indicated as one of the lawyers who were among the first to defend him. Of him, Thaw writes:

"The traitor. He was a creature far more and uglier than Stanford White, aside from White's one vice. White was a man of many attractions. He had friends, but this scum was bad clean through. You could not say of White that he was utterly rotten in character, because he had his good points.

"The traitor had no excuse whatever. He knew not one in my family but myself. I had hired him. The next member of my family he came to know was Evelyn herself. He had no motive for betraying us except that he was secretly working for our foes."

Most of the book is devoted to invective at the expense of "The Traitor," excerpts from the trial to show Thaw was not insane and praise of Evelyn Nesbit.

True Economy Is Learned in the School of Matrimony

Making the little old pay check cover the cost of living, with a little over to go into the savings account, is a task that the average husband turns over to his wife very shortly after the honeymoon ends.

And it doesn't take her long to discover that she must hunt bargains and buy economically and wisely. If she is fortunate enough to live in Atlanta she also learns quickly that Atlanta's merchants are always ready to help her save, and to give her wonderful values at reasonable prices.

Because she wants her afternoons and evenings for recreation, amusement and entertainment, she reads The Constitution advertisements every morning, for experience soon proves that the best bargains and prices for the day are given in The Constitution.

Amusements
West End Theater.

Football fans have the opportunity of seeing the former gridiron star, motion pictures. He is Warner Richmond, former quarterback on the University of Virginia football team. Richmond has a big role in "The Making of O'Malley," in which Milton Sills is being starred. "The Making of O'Malley," which is being shown at the West End theater today, is a vivid, heart-grIPPING story of a New York policeman and a society heiress.

Rialto Theater.
Marshall Neilan's latest picture production, "Wild Oats Lane," which is at the Rialto theater, has been warmly received by the audience. The picture is a dramatic picture, tensely dramatic and appealing. The scenes are laid in a country town and in the underworld of New York. The story deals with a boy and girl who go astray but who are regenerated through love and find happiness. Viola Dana and Robert Agnew are featured.

Tudor Theater.
Showing at the Tudor now is the latest great laugh success from the comedians, Harold Lloyd's "The Mark of O'Malley." Lloyd is a rich guy who didn't care for money and got into all kinds of mix-ups to get rid of it, causing laughs to come fast. The story starts to finish with "For Heaven's Sake" has been pronounced one of the best comedies ever produced by Lloyd.

At the Forsyth.
Present indications are that the Forsyth theater will not be able to hold the tremendous holiday crowd expected to attend the opening of "Little Miss Bluebeard," at a special Labor day matinee next Monday afternoon.

Demands for seats increase daily and the limited number of matinee seats for the opening are going at swift rate so great is the desire of theatergoers to witness the premiere of Avery Hopwood's great French farce which will hold still next week at the well-known playhouse.

With Mildred Florence and James Coots in leading roles, supported by a cast of stock players of wide experience and success, this fall season points to a new success for Manager Martin L. Semon, who is sponsoring the new permanent Forsyth Players aggregation here.

The Howard Theater.
With everybody standing on the sidelines and the big show just had to happen! And it did! Thomas Meighan's newest Paramount picture, "Tin Gods," which is playing at the Howard theater this week is a real knockout!

Supporting Tom, are the two featured women, Renee Adoree, heroine of "The Sign of the Cross," and Aileen Pringle, fairy princess of a hundred plots.

The Public stage presentation for this week is "Gus Edwards" ("Gingham Revue"). Among the leading entertainers in this production is Clifton Crane, one of the best eccentric and novelty dancers seen at the Howard this year.

Loew's Grand.
With five acts of real headline stanning the vaudeville bill at Loew's Grand this week is really one of the most pleasing seen here in weeks. Alex Hyde, famous violinist, heads the bill in his new act, "Berlin Versus Loew's." This act points to music pitted against classic music for popular favor. Hyde is assisted by an able company of musicians and dancers. Other acts of unusual merit on the bill are Mason and Gynnie in a fancy black and white skit; the Worths with Ashley Page in a dancing novelty with music; the "C. R. 4," a quartette of sweet singers who offer a pleasing repertoire of songs; and Bert Ford and Lucille Price in a fire walking act of reckless dexterity. The Loew feature picture is "Tony Runs Wild" one of Tom Mix's best productions.

The Metropolitan.
"The Son of the Sheik" the last and crowning screen triumph of Rudolph Valentino, continues to register heavily at the Metropolitan theater this week. The picture, which has been presented to crowded houses at the morning, afternoon and evening performances each day. Vilma Banky, Loew's star, is appearing in a play with Rudy in his last play and her work in "The Son of the Sheik" is winning commendable praise. Eddie Lede and his Metropolitan orchestra are featured.

2 ARRESTS MADE IN JUDGE'S DEATH

Montgomery, Ala., August 31.—(AP) Clyde Reese Bachelor, son-in-law of Judge Lamar Smith, and Hays Leonard, a negro farm hand on Bachelor's plantation who are charged with the murder of Judge Lamar Smith, of Wetumpka, last night, were arrested at that place late this afternoon and brought to the county jail here.

Leonard, it was said, made a confession, saying that he shot Judge Smith because he was forced to do so by Bachelor. Bachelor did not make any statement. The arrest was made by Sheriff J. H. Golden. Bachelor appears to be about 25 years of age.

A large number of citizens gathered around the Montgomery jail shortly after Leonard and Bachelor were confined behind the bars. The officers immediately ordered the crowd inside of the building. When the citizens entered a strong guard of officers marched out with Bachelor and Leonard and spirited them away in an automobile. It was said that they were carried to Kilby prison for safekeeping.

Judge Smith was lying on a bed in his home reading when a load of hushshot was fired upon him, through an open window. His wife who was nearby was slightly wounded. Leonard was rushed here for medical attention, but only lived a few hours.

Scores of friends of Judge Smith from this city and all nearby sections of the county gathered at the funeral services at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Mr. Windham of the Presbyterian church officiated and interment was in the Wetumpka cemetery. One brother, Edward Smith, of Rome, Ga., was unable to attend the funeral. He has been in a hospital for several days.
